HUB SNUBS FAIR COUE DISCIPLE

Marchesa Capponi Sails for Paris After Failure to Establish School

The efforts of the Marchesa A. Manucci Capponi to establish a Coue school in Boston have ended in failure, and the Italian noblewoman has returned to Europe.

She told her friends she had been snubbed in Boston and had failed to interest Boston people in her venture. This was just before she sailed for Paris.

She had selected the children of the Boston poor to receive the first benefits of her instruction in auto suggestion but reported she could not interest the settlement houses and prison workers as she had hoped.

ARDENT DISCIPLE.

The Marchesa, an ardent disciple of M. Coue, came to this country with him. She came here after the healer of many ended his spectacular tour and announced what was to have been the first Coue school in America and work on a lavish scale. She had headquarters at the Hotel Victoria and announced:

"While M. Coue was in America he was unable to give his personal attention to each of the thousands

American Woman Best Dressed in World, Says Painter

Paris, April 30.—London's claim to the title of new style centre is met with disdain by the dressmaking world of Paris. The claim of the British metropolis was based on the fact that the Duchess of York's trousseau and the other wonderful dresses worn at the British royal wedding, were made and designed in London.

"The best dressed woman in the world is the American woman, who wears Paris styles. The worst dressed women in the world are the Germans, with the English a close second," declared Jean Gabriel Domergue, famous society painter.

TWO-ALARM BLAZE IN FACTORY

Fire in the two-story wooden building at No. 485 Medford street, Charlestown, caused $25,000 damage today to the plant of the Whitemore-Woodbury Shoe Polish Company.

The blaze started from an overheated kettle in the waxing room of the plant.

Two alarms were sent in, and equipment from Somerville and Boston responded.

Falls Four Stories in Lynn

Leslie McKim of Swampscott High lands, a house painter, fell four stories when the rope on the staging upon which he was working at a building at No. 24 Liden street, Lynn, broke today. He was taken to Lynn Hospital.

N. E. RIVERS BREAK OUT ON RAMPAGE

Dams Swept Away, Railroads Flooded and Homes Destroyed in Floods

Rivers of northern New England, swollen by the heavy rains of the last two days, are on a rampage. Several dams have been swept away, bridges damaged and long stretches of railroad track washed out and many highways are under water.

Trains have been cancelled on several divisions of the Maine Central Railroad and on portions of the Boston & Maine system. Great log drives, breaking their booms, have been swept away.

Service by way of the Canadian Pacific Railway from New England to the Maritime Provinces of Canada was cut off by the cancellation of all trains on the Bangor-Vanceboro section of the main line of the Maine Central. The Bristol branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad was temporarily abandoned when water covered the tracks for a long stretch along the Pemigewasset River, near Hill, N. H.

DAMS WASHED AWAY.

The dam of the Howland Pulp and Paper Company at the outlet of Sheemee Pond, near Brownville, Me., and the Katahdin Iron Works dam in the same section of the State have gone out. There is a mile-long washout on the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad in that vicinity.

Four thousand cords of pulpwood which smashed through a boom in Queechee River in Vermont yesterday rushed down into the Connecticut River and early today had reached Turners Falls, Mass., where they swept away the flashboards of the dam.

The city of Concord, N. H., was cut off from highway communication, except to the westward, when

COX JOINS BOYCOTT ON SUGAR

Family Limited to Buying in Small Quantities; Thousands Follow His Lead

The boycott had prompt effect today on the wholesale price. Aubuckle Brothers reduced refined sugar ten points to 10 cents. The American Sugar Company cut the price ten points to 10.15 cents.

With the above statement Governor Cox today showed where the Cox household stands on the boycott which Boston and New England housewives have started against the sugar profiteers.

COUNTRY-WIDE STRIKE.

There are three persons, the Governor, Mrs. Cox and their daughter, Nancy, in the immediate family. The household includes servants. Then there are frequent guests, as a matter of course, at the Governor's table.

"You have really boycotted sugar?" he was asked.

"I don't know whether you would call it a complete boycott," he replied, "but those are the facts." He went on:

"I understand many of the retail dealers are advising their customers

SHIP'S BOW SPLIT WIDE OPEN

Wife of the Third Mate Plays a Heroine's Part; Captain Overboard, but Rescued

Twenty-three survivors of the Boston steamer Seaconnet, which foundered in Vineyard Sound Sunday, landed today at New Bedford with eye witness accounts of the death of seven men, and thrilling tales of their battle for life against a storm-whipped sea.

The victims were swept overboard when a huge wall of water crashed over the decks of the sinking vessel while the second life boat was being launched.

BUILT IN WAR RUSH.

The bow and port side seams of the Seaconnet, built in record time at Camden, N. J., during the war rush, split wide open during the fifteen-hour gale, according to Captain Daniel H. Miller of Rockdale.

The sea shot in through the openings, filling the hold with such terrifying speed that the port deck was awash before the second lifeboat was launched.

Two of the rescued, Captain Mil-

ILLNESS DELAYS SACCO CASE

Owing to the critical illness of District Attorney Harold P. Williams, Judge Webster Thayer at Dedham today indefinitely postponed arguments on motions for a new trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti.

The request for a continuance was made by Assistant District Attorney Joseph B. Keith, who told the court that Mr. Williams had been stricken with pneumonia. Attorney William G. Thompson, speaking for counsel for the defence, agreed to deferring arguments without date and said he and his associates regretted Mr. Williams' illness.

Judge Thayer said it would be a month at least before Mr. Williams would be able to appear in court. Sacco and Vanzetti were not in court.

AUTO HITS COP, ARREST DRIVER

Patrolman Ray A. Monahan, on traffic duty at Tremont and Broadway, was struck by an automobile and dragged twenty feet before the machine came to a stop.

The driver, William E. Marshall of Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, was arrested on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Marshall protested he had not been drinking, so the police of La grange street station, where Monahan is attached, called Dr. C. W. Harrison and Dr. William A. Dunn, police physician. Both declared the man had been drinking.

Monahan is confined to his home with his injuries. Attending doctors are uncertain as to how serious these are.

IMPEACHMENT OF TAFT DEMANDED

Chicago, April 30.—The national executive committee of the Socialist party announced today that it had adopted a resolution urging the resignation or impeachment of William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States, because of his continued acceptance of a $10,000 annuity from the late Andrew Carnegie.

SEVEN OF CREW SWEPT TO DEATH BY GREAT WAVE

ler and Wireless Officer Vincent Charte of Gloucester, the last two on the ship, were carried overboard on the crest of a mountainous wave.

They were dragged half-conscious aboard Lifeboat No. 2, which nearly capsized as they were being pulled over the side.

Two men, Captain Daniel H. Miller of Roslindale, the last man aboard the ship, and Vincent Charte of Gloucester, wireless officer, were carried over the side on the crest of a mountainous wave and dragged into a lifeboat.

Mrs. Romie Hudkins, wife of the third mate, with seven men in another lifeboat, played a heroic role, taking her turn in bailing the rapidly filling boat, which was tossed about like a cork for more than five hours before the survivors reached the Vineyard Sound Lightship.

There she refused to leave the boat until she had made a search for the diamond from her engagement ring which had been knocked from its setting while she was bailing.

WOMAN'S STORY OF WRECK.

Mrs. Hudkins, pert and smiling in spite of her harrowing experience, today told a graphic story as she stepped from the lightship tender Menemine at Merrill's Wharf, New Bedford.

"About midnight the wind began blowing with awful force," she said. "I was in my stateroom. I could not sleep because of the pounding I tossed on my bunk and prayed for safety. About 4 o'clock my husband came in. He told me to dress and come with him to the wheelhouse to watch the water break over the ship.

"It was terrible. Great grayish green mountains came roaring over the bow and then would crash down on the decks with a horrible noise. I was frightened. It was awe-inspiring. I didn't want to keep looking but those monsters held my eyes."

"I was half sick with fear, but my husband kept reassuring me. Captain Miller came running to the wheelhouse, about 4:55, I should say. He shouted to my husband. We had difficulty making out what he said because of the roar of wind and waves.

"THE SHIP'S SINKING."

"Finally we heard him yell: 'Get your wife in a lifeboat. We must leave. The ship's sinking fast.'

"The men were so kind. They helped me to lifeboat No. 1, on the port side, then almost awash. I got in and with me were seven men. We pulled away. As we did a wave struck us and the little boat rocked horribly. The men, realizing the boat would sink quickly, rowed like mad to get away from the suction.

GREAT SWEEP OF WATER.

"I turned back in time to see a number of the men dragging lifeboat No. 2 from the starboard side. This was so high out of water that they had to launch from the port side.

"Everyone was scrambling to get in when that sweep of water came. I saw several shot far out from the Seaconnet's side. I saw two men being carried in the general direction of the lifeboat. Then I saw these men being lifted aboard.

"There was a rumbling noise, something like thunder that seemed to come from the centre of the ship. Then it began sinking faster than ever.

"We could not see in any direction. The waves cut off the view. Every side of us were angry white caps that seemed to be making a vicious effort to drag us down. Water kept breaking over us.

LIFEBOAT FILLS.

"We were drenched. It was cold. The boat kept filling and the water sloshed around our feet most uncomfortably. I thought I would never live.

"The men started bailing with pails and cans. I took one. It seemed to me as though my arms and back would break with the ceaseless bending and throwing of water overboard. The movement became mechanical. I do not know how long I kept at it.

"The tossing motion made me very sick. One minute we would be way up in the air and then we would shoot to a valley with awful speed. It was like riding on a steep roller coaster.

"We came to the lightship. When we sighted it the men gave a shout. When we got aboard the lightship I could not find my husband. I grew rather hysterical. Captain Miller led him to me. That was the happiest moment of my life. I'll never go to sea again. Never!"

CAPTAIN MILLER A HERO.

Captain Miller, whose heroism won the praise of his men, said: "I do not know what should cause these seams to split open. I rather think that we were battered to such extent that the cargo—5,200 tons of coal from Norfolk, Va., to Boston—shifted and pounded their sides.

"I was on deck when I felt a jar. I sent men below to find what was the trouble. They reported water pouring through the holes. I went below myself. I saw that nothing could be done except abandon ship. I ordered the lifeboats launched."

Wireless Officer Charte, who stuck at his radio instrument until ordered to leave by his captain, said: "I began sending S. O. S. calls at 4 o'clock. We heard first from the City of Rome, which runs between Boston and Savannah, but we never saw her or any other vessel.

FIND OVERTURNED HULL.

"About one-half hour after I started sending there was a decided list to port. Then she began settling fast. There was no chance to save her."

J. Good, a fireman, told the American that the pumps were started Friday night when a leak was discovered. "We didn't begin taking much water until a few hours before she sank," he said.

The revenue cutter, Acushnet, went in search of survivors and while scouring Vineyard Sound for traces of the missing men today came on the overturned hull of the lifeboat Seaconnet. Warnings were wireless to passing ships.

Two other sailors were drowned and seven vessels were wrecked in the storm that swept the New England coast for fifteen hours.

Nine other vessels wrecked, together with those lost, are:

Mish steam yacht, Thelmahbe, Nassau, carrying a cargo of coal, driven ashore on Fisher's Island, Vineyard Sound. A negro steward named Roberts was drowned when he dived overboard with a line in his teeth in a vain attempt to reach shore.

Three-masted schooner Francis Goodnow, Boston, wrecked on McKenney's Point, near Elizabeth, Me. Entire crew rescued.

Coal barge Braddock, Fall River, crashed on the rocks off Point Judith. Master George Gardner of Fall River went down with the vessel. Crew rescued.

Coal barge Ephrata, Philadelphia, wrecked off Popham Beach, Me. Entire crew rescued.

In the rescue of the crew of the Thelmahbe was made difficult by the precarious position of the vessel. A lifeboat was finally rigged and twenty-one members of the crew sent to shore in breeches buoys. Roberts, the negro cook, became frantic, and grasping a mattress, jumped overboard before members of the crew could restrain him. His body has not been found.

Many cases of liquor from the cargo of the Thelma-Phoebe, washed ashore by the high seas, were picked up by coast guards and turned over to customs agents.

The coal barges Braddock, Canton and Taunton, bound for Fall River, were totally unable to combat the forty-mile gale which wrecked them off Point Judith. The barges were pounded to splinters on the rocks. George Gardiner, master of the Braddock, went down with his vessel after seeing all the members of his crew started for shore.

the Merrimack River and its tributaries overflowed the low-lying roads in all other directions.

TORRENT OF WATER.

The greater part of the Winter's huge accumulation of snow had melted without serious freshets, because of the alternate cool and warm weather during this month. In the mountains of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, however, much remained and this was loosened when the warm rain started Saturday.

Every little stream contributed a torrent of water, which sent the level of the rivers up rapidly. This was particularly noticeable in the Pemigewasset River, which rises in Franconia Notch in the White Mountains and joins the Winnipesaukee River, outlet of Lake Winnipesaukee, at Franklin, N. H., to form the Merrimack.

Maine Central Cancels All Trains on Flooded Lines

Portland, Me., April 30—The Maine Central today cancelled all passenger and freight trains on the main line between Bangor and Vanceboro, between Bangor and Mt. Desert and to all points on the Washington County line because of the washouts from the heavy rain and as a precaution against accident. Cancellations between Bangor and Vanceboro affect connections with the Canadian Pacific Railroad to the maritime provinces.

Kennebec Highest in Years; Ties Up Traffic at Augusta

Augusta, Me., April 30.—Considerable damage to property, tie-up of rail traffic and suspension of telephone service followed a flood of the Kennebec River which came today on the heels of last night's storm.

It is the worst flood of the river in 25 years. There was a 10-foot flow over the dam at Augusta, where the normal flow is three feet.

It is reported that the dam at Moosehead Lake has given away.

Local merchants anticipated the flood by removing their stocks from basements. Quick work enabled the local postoffice authorities to remove the mail from the basement of the postoffice.

The storm blew down several telephone poles and an electric tower on Capitol street, which crashed into the home of Mrs. Sarah Cram. Mrs. Cram and several members of her family narrowly escaped death.

Various cotton and pulpmills in the section have closed down in anticipation of further flood, throwing hundreds out of work.

WEDDING IS OFF, DECLARES "BILLY"

To Re-enact Killing of Peters by Ward

DETECTIVES WILL STAGE TRAGEDY

State to Duplicate Murder in Every Detail, Even to the Weather Conditions

By International News Service.

New York, April 30.—Some night this week the tragic death of Clarance Peters, sailor, shot to death by Walter S. Ward, son of the millionaire baker, will be re-enacted on the Kensico Reservoir road in Westchester County.

The drama will be directed by the State of New York as part of Attorney-General Sherman's investigation into the slaying admitted by Ward and for which he was indicted but never tried by the Westchester authorities.

WILL RE-STAGE DRAMA.

Attorney-General Sherman announced today that the State plans to duplicate, as near as possible, the conditions of the killing, even to waiting for weather conditions similar to those of the night of nearly a year ago, when Peters was slain.

J. Leslie Irvine, Brooklyn contractor, his son and a companion spent the night of Peters' murder in a disabled automobile about a mile from the spot where the body was found the next morning, they testified at the Attorney-General's investigation.

They saw no flashing headlights at the scene and did not hear a shot fired, they declared, although they said the night was clear and quiet and that the report of a gun at that distance would have "sounded like a cannon."

FOLLOW EVERY DETAIL.

At several points in the vicinity investigators will be stationed where witnesses have said they were the night of the shooting. At the spot where the body was picked up from the road, the details of the shooting, as told by Ward, will be re-enacted and the observation of the investigators taken to determine whether or not they correspond to those of the witnesses.

SHAWMUT MISSION REVIVAL MEETINGS

The old Shawmut Mission, at No. 33 Warrenton street, will begin a series of revival meetings at the Mission on Wednesday night and continue every evening for ten days. The Burnish Bush Evangelists, Rev. William T. Pettengill, Rev. Charles T. Hollingsworth and Miss Helga Bjorkell will conduct the services. A male quartet will sing.

who flocked to him. But back in Nancy he tries to give attention to the individual. I shall do the same." She showed a letter from M. Coue which read:

"Madame Capponi, who has been a faithful observer and coworker in Nancy, has not only executive ability and qualities of leadership, but with her wide culture and high ideals is unusually qualified to carry on my work."

This glowing recommendation, however, proved not enough to bring Boston thronging to the clinics of its distinguished visitor.

And according to friends in New York the distinguished disciple of Coue was not only snubbed in Boston but was "frozen out" by New York society leaders who claim auto suggestion healing and Couéism as an incorporated business of their own.

So while Mrs. David Kirk has been suggested by independent Coue followers in New York to take up the work abandoned by the Marchesa Capponi in Boston Mrs. Lyford and other directors of the National Coue Institute, Inc., declare no one will be granted authority to establish classes in Boston at this time.

They say they do not know what had become of the marchesa and are not interested.

JEALOUS, KILLS RIVAL WITH BOMB

Kentucky Woman Blows Up Other's Home With Dynamite; 3 Children Unharmed

Paducah, Ky., April 30.—Mrs. Rosetta Rosetta Daughtery Warren, thirty-four, was killed today in a dynamite explosion which wrecked her home here. Her body was mangled.

Her three children, Christine, eight; Aline, ten, and Eugene, fifteen, escaped injury. An arrest in the case is expected momentarily.

A woman is believed to have planted the explosive from jealousy.

The charge was placed at the corner of the front room, directly under the bed on which Mrs. Warren slept. The three children, who were asleep in an adjoining room, had remarkable escapes.

Mrs. Warren's husband was at work at the time of the explosion.

It is said the person guilty of the crime will be prosecuted on a double murder charge if apprehended, as Mrs. Warren was expecting to become a mother.

The blast shattered windows in houses within a block's radius.

TWO BARELY ESCAPE PORTSMOUTH FIRE

Portsmouth, N. H., April 30.—Fire that destroyed George Maglardis' barber shop on Fleet street today threatened to spread until stopped by a steel wall and ceiling in the Melches building, adjacent to the shop, and the quick work of the firemen. George Faras, owner of the building, broke a bottle of gasoline and the fumes were ignited by a plumber's torch. Farus and the plumber barely escaped. Damage occurred to the men's clothing store of John G. Persons, the shoe store of Kerwin Leach, and the candy store of Farus Brothers, all on the first floor. Several doctors and others were driven from the upper floor by smoke.

FRANCE AND TURKEY ARE NEAR WAR

Both Sides Mass Troops on the Syrian Border; U. S. Fleet at Constantinople

London.—The convention under which Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, retired, and his associates are granted development concessions in Anatolia has been signed at Angora, the Turkish Nationalist capital, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Constantinople today.

By International News Service.

Paris, April 30.—Hostilities between the Turks and French were threatened today along the Syrian frontier. Both sides are concentrating troops in that zone.

Following a conference among General Pelle, French high commission and head of the French delegation at Lausanne, General Weygand, chief of staff to General Foch; President Millerand of France and Premier Poincare, announcement was made that the government decided to send two additional colonial divisions to Syria.

Gen. Weygand

General Pelle reported he had received advices from Beyrut that the Turks were massing troops along the Syrian border and that the attitude of Turkey was most threatening.

Meanwhile, the cruiser Pittsburg, mother ship of the twenty American destroyers at Constantinople, has been moved there from the Black Sea. In her wake came the destroyer Barry from Samsum, a Black Sea port in Northeast Turkey, and the terminus of the Samsum-Sivas Railroad, which is included in the Chester concessions, but is claimed by France.

Two days later the destroyer Goff arrived at Constantinople from Smyrna. In Asiatic waters awaiting orders are six more American destroyers.

Russia Protests Being Excluded at Lausanne

Lausanne, April 30 (By the Associated Press).—An official protest against "Russia being arbitrarily kept out of the conference" was sent to the Near East Peace Conference today by M. Vorovsky, Soviet representative here. He declared such a decision was in direct violation of the terms of the invitation sent to Russia by Great Britain, France and Italy preceding the first Lausanne conference, on November 14, 1922.

87 LOOM FIXERS ON STRIKE IN CLINTON

Clinton, April 30.—Eighty-six loom fixers employed by the Lancaster Mills did not report for work today. They have demanded an increase in wages of 23 per cent., 12½ per cent. in addition to that which went into effect today. They have a well organized union. Members of the union declare the mill management intended that each fixer care for six additional looms under the increase effective today. They claim this arrangement reduced their increase to but 7 per cent. because of the additional work expected.

SAID HE HAD $800 IN BANK; WIFE FINDS $5

John Kamel of No. 102 Harvard street, was arraigned today before Judge Dowd in Municipal Court on a charge of forgery and held in bail of $1,500. The complainant was Mrs. Kamel, who alleged that, when she married John a month ago, he swore before a notary public that he had $800 in the bank, and showed a bank book to prove it. The bank book, it developed, had been altered, as John had only $5 in the bank.

to buy as little as possible until normal prices are restored."

Country-wide sugar strikes have been organized. The striking housewives are pledged not to buy another pound of sugar until the grip of the speculator is broken loose.

The speculators are openly alarmed at the buyers' strike, no matter how sceptical they may feel about the Federal government's move to break the speculative movement which is the real cause of the outrageous prices.

Eleven governors of States have pledged endorsement of the campaign for sugar skimping inaugurated by the Hearst newspapers. Nine senators and many leaders of women's clubs, including Mrs. T. G. Winter, president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, have openly enlisted against the profiteers.

ORGANIZED HERE.

The Housekeepers' League of Boston, of which Mrs. Ida Hebard is president, is working in organized manner for the regulation of price of sugar. Mrs. Hebbard has urged all housewives not to buy and hoard sugar.

The fear that speculators have for a consumers' boycott has already been shown on the New York Sugar Exchange. From a high of 6.65 cents a pound, the May options tumbled to 6.36 cents Saturday, a fall of more than 40 points, or two-fifths of a cent since the middle of the week.

More than half this drop came Saturday. The market closed unsettled. The condition was ascribed wholly to "the impending consumers' boycott." Today brought a 10-point slash in wholesale price by the refiners.

That shows what even a boycott threat can do. Today the cumulative effect of the spreading boycott was enhanced by beginning of the Federal government's suit in the Court of Appeals for an injunction to dissolve the New York Sugar Exchange.

FIGHT INJUNCTION.

Exchange counsel, headed by John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, planned to block the prosecution wherever possible.

New York sugar brokers belittled the government's proceedings. They declared that months would elapse ere the Department of Justice could crash through the barriers of delay which the sugar exchange could raise.

Which meant, in their opinion, that it would be a long time before any effective injunction was granted.

WEDDING IS OFF, SAYS "BILLY"

Does Not Intend to Marry Peggy Davis, Declares Worthington

Peggy Davis, Ziegfeld Follies girl, lays the "temporary interruption" of her marriage plans to the five-day law and her mother's intervention, but Napoleon A. Worthington, son of a Baltimore millionaire, says it's simply a case of disinclination on his part.

"Neither Peggy Davis' 'past,' nor her mother is to be blamed," Mr. Worthington said today. "I simply do not intend to marry her, although I may have at one time."

Peggy Davis, known off stage as Margaret Laird, has a "past" dotted with two marriages, both of which were annulled. The first, with Lieutenant-Colonel Joseph Alexander Davies, took place when she was barely thirteen years old.

Her second attempt was with Joseph Donald Grafton, also at one time a lieutenant-colonel and son of a Pittsburgh millionaire furniture manufacturer. He was afterwards discovered to have four wives

FOURTH TIME.

She slipped into Boston last week, and a rumor circulated that the couple were married.

"The five-day law halted us," declared Peggy. "This is the fourth time we have tried. My age, not yet eighteen, stopped us before. My mother says she will have our marriage annulled because I am still under age. We will be married when I am eighteen."

But Worthington, who remained in Boston when Peggy took a morning train to New York today, said:

"I came to Boston on business, and met Peggy Davis by chance. That's all that started the marriage rumor."

Miss Davis' story gave ample basis for the "rumor." She said:

"I came here last Tuesday to marry Billy. I met him three months ago when playing on the Century Roof. He is a wonderful boy and comes from a fine old Southern family. It was love at first sight.

"We first tried to get married in Baltimore a week after we met. We tried twice after that. When Billy came to Boston on business we decided to try here.

"Mother wired me Tuesday night: 'No letter. Wire what happened. Is ceremony over? Love, Mother.'

"I replied, 'Did not go to Providence. Can't marry because of five day law.'

"Mother then replied: 'Fourth failure proves God's will. Come home to mother. You are young yet. Wait a while. Love, Mother.'

"I have tried to avoid publicity since the Grafton case," Peggy sobbed. "I am broken-hearted to think Billy is getting publicity from this affair."

8-YEAR-OLD GIRL'S SLAYER A MADMAN, DECLARES PHYSICIAN

ATTACKED AND BEATEN TO DEATH

Every Available Detective Is Working on Brutal Murder in Brooklyn

New York, April 30.—"The work of a madman," declared Dr. Manuel E. Marten today after making an autopsy following the finding of the body of eight-year-old Josephine Bruno of Brooklyn.

The body was found in the cellar of her home. The child had been attacked. Her skull had been battered against a chopping block. The body, face down, in the dirt of the cellar lay sprawled with arms outstretched. The girl had been missing all night.

Police working on the case today asserted in their belief that the murder had been committed by a man who knew the girl and who was able to entice her to the cellar because she was aware he was known to the family.

Several men were arrested, questioned and let go. Every available detective in Brooklyn was working on the case.

It was the child's love for her father, Emilio Bruno, that led to her death. She had insisted upon waiting at the door for his return from work about 5 o'clock in the evening. It was while she was waiting that she fell into the hands of the slayer. The place of death was in a congested tenement district.

Josephine was a pretty girl, Mrs. Bruno said, with dark eyes, and had attained Grade 3A at Public School No. 7, where her sister, Angelina, also attends school.

Bruno is a war veteran, having been wounded in service with the 139th Italian Infantry Regiment.

Captain Arthur Carey, who took charge of the investigation with twenty detectives, found only a man's coat in an upper room to serve as a clew. It was decided some one familiar with the inside stairway to the cellar committed the murder.

An umbrella the child had when murdered, the wooden chopping block, a heavy iron bolt and a piece of stained glass were collected from the cellar and taken to the Poplar street station to be examined for finger prints. There the mystery rested.

Accused in Holdup

FRANK J. TYNER

HELD IN $25,000 AS PAYROLL BANDIT

Frank J. Tyner was held in $25,000 bail in Roxbury court today as third bandit in the auto holdup April 6, when Paymaster Peter Gaddis of the New England Telephone Company was robbed of $20,746 payroll funds.

Tyner, who lives in Winthrop street, Roxbury, pleaded not guilty. His case was continued to May 8, the same date as the continuance in the cases of Herbert P. Shaugnessey and Edward Wallace.

The two latter were arrested on the same robbery charge when they went to a Worcester bank to remove money from safe deposit vaults engaged the day after the holdup.

Shaugnessey and Wallace, who had been identified by Gaddis, were held in $50,000 bail each. Inspector Flaherty asked today for higher bail than $25,000 for Tyner.

NEGROES WANT LYNCHERS HELD FOR MURDER

New York, April 30.—Trial for first degree murder of every person who participated in the lynching of James T. Scott, alleged assailant of a fourteen-year-old girl, was demanded by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in a telegram sent to Governor Hyde of Missouri today.

Columbia, Mo., April 30.—Prosecuting Attorney Hulen was to start an investigation today into the lynching of James Scott, negro, accused of having attacked Regina Allmstead, fourteen-year-old daughter of a professor in the Missouri State University. The negro was taken from the County Jail by an enraged mob numbering about 600 and hanged to a trestle.

Scott was a janitor at the university. The names of several citizens said to have been concerned in the lynching mob have been given to the prosecutor.

GARLAND REBELS AT RESTRICTIONS IMPOSED BY HIS WIFE

REFUSES TO OBSERVE SABBATH

Leaves "Bay End" for Baseball Game With Two Girl Companions

Buzzards Bay, April 30.—Charles Garland, eccentric idealist of "April Farm" fame, and his pretty young wife, Mary Wrenn Garland, are seeking the road to happiness.

They are asking the advice of no one, and their only wish is to be let alone in the solving of their problem.

Mrs. Charles Garland

This in brief is the substance of a brief statement issued by Mrs. Garland to a Boston American reporter through Max Sewell Simpson, the artist, who is stopping with Mrs. Garland at her home at "Bay End Farm," here.

"My husband and I are trying to be happy. We are seeking happiness as we see best. We do not ask advice from anyone. All we ask is that the newspapers and others leave us alone to work out our own problem. We can make but little progress while we are being hounded by the papers."

While Mrs. Garland was observing the Sabbath decorously indoors, her husband was violating her Sunday rest rule by playing baseball at "April Farm." The mysterious blonde girl and Alice Edgerton were taking part and children of the farm workers served as the remainder of the necessary eighteen players.

Mrs. Garland had insisted that Charles stay at home on Sundays and holidays, but he quite obviously had little compunction about her feelings on the subject. His mother, Mrs. Marie Tudor Garland, the owner of "Bay End," is expected to reach here soon and will undoubtedly support her daughter-in-law's campaign to yoke Charles more firmly in the marital harness.

"Mrs. Garland is very serious in her effort to find the happiness that she has been deprived of for so many months," said Max. She is determined in her present stand and will not discuss her affairs further with the newspapers. She feels that she is on the right course to happiness and wants to work it out with her husband."

At this point a servant unleashed a huge German police dog which had been chained in the cellar of the Bay End home. The dog dashed toward the reporter but was stopped by the artist.

"For reporters?" he was asked.

"For any one who is not wanted around the farm," the artist replied with a broad smile.

Meanwhile, life at "April Farm" in North Carver is going on just as before—during the daytime. Garland will not give up his pet idea. He is determined that it is on "April Farm" that he will some day discover what he can do that will be of the most good for the great masses.

He keeps his bobbed-haired girl chums there as he did before the reconciliation with his wife. The girls wear the same unconventional clothing. Garland wears more unconventional clothing than ever before. He has taken to running pants in place of the familiar knickers.

Steeplechases in Maryland Attract Society Says Betty Alden

One of the most enthusiastic huntswomen of the smart set is Miss Ruth Neyhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adnah Neyhart of "Redgate Farm."

By BETTY ALDEN.

AN enthusiastic band of sportsmen went down from Boston for the Maryland Hunt Cup steeplechases held on Saturday. Those races, held just outside of the Oriole City at Green Spring Valley, are about the biggest amateur steeplechases in the country, and naturally attract horse devotees from far and wide.

The Albert Burrages, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Burrage were among the Hub folk going down, Albert Burrage to take part in the races. The latter has won quite a few steeplechases within the last few seasons and, like his brother Russell, is a crack polo player.

Making the trip South with the Burrages were the Harry Pratt McKeans (Bessie Lee), leaders among the younger married set along the North Shore, where their place is at Beverly Farms. Tall and dark-haired, Mrs. McKean is one of the George Lee's quartet of daughters, her sisters being Mrs. Arthur Adams (Margery Lee), Mrs. Huntington Frothingham (Marie Lee) and Miss Florence Lee, who's been spending much of her time abroad within the last few years, and seems as much interested in her art as ever.

MRS. EDWARD EVERETT BLODGETT, who joined the Boston colony at Hot Springs some time ago, gave a bridge and tea there the other day on the terrace of Evergreen Garden. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Moseley of Beacon street have concluded their sojourn at Hot Springs and are returning North.

THOUGH Junius Richards isn't scheduled to join the ranks of the benedicts until June 2, he has already given his farewell dinner, this jolly event taking place Saturday night at the Harvard Club in New York.

William Prescott of Beacon street, who's to serve young Richard as best man, as well as "Cush" Hamlen and Francis Brooks of the ushers' corps, went on from Boston for the affair. Also at the dinner were the other ushers, Rempe Russell, who married Susie Wesselhoeft, the young people making their home Keene, N. H.; two brothers-in-law of the bride, Maynard Ivison and Douglas Gibbons both of New York, and Jack Winchester, who married Richards' step-sister, the former Lilian Aldrich at one of Boston's largest weddings last June.

Mr. Richards is the son of Mrs. Charles Frost Aldrich, who made her home in Boston until last Winter, when she moved to New York to be nearer her children. His bride-to-be is Miss Marie R. Thayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Thayer of New York, at whose home the wedding will take place.

MISS RUTH NEYHART—pleasured above on one of her favorite mounts—is one of the keenest riders to follow the hounds at the Norfolk Hunt Club.

She's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adnah Neyhart, whose country home out Framingham way is known as "Redgate Farm." Both she and her sister, Miss Dorothy Neyhart, are prominent members of the Vincent Club.

THE Misses Mary Appleton and Helen Ellis have been spending a few days in Newport, R. I., at the Laforge Cottage.

BOSTON IN GRIP OF DOPE RING, SAYS JUANITA

By JUANITA HANSEN

I'm going to stop preaching today and give you a few facts.

I have been looking over the records of the drug traffic in Boston. I shall not attempt to give the complete figures. These are confidential and the time is not ripe to divulge them.

But a few odd figures will show the extent of the traffic.

Take the year 1921, for instance.

Juanita Hansen

The records show that in that year nearly $200,000 worth of drugs were seized by Federal men in various parts of Boston. If that quantity was confiscated, how many hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of drugs do you suppose came in without interception? The figure would probably run into the millions.

Records available in the State House show that in 1872 there were not more than 100,000 drug addicts in the entire country. Today a conservative estimate of drug slaves in the United States is 2,000,000. The traffic, cold figures show, has increased twenty-fold in some fifty years.

Today the United States is in the front rank of nations in the illicit use of drugs. And Boston, I regret to say, is as deeply in the grip of the traffic as any other American city, with a concentration of its sale in Charlestown. It is no secret that in Boston, as well as in other large cities, the pedlars have been caught on the steps of schools, waiting for their tiny victims. They have also been caught using school children as delivery agents to send "hirdies" to their clients.

JUANITA THREATENED.

The low cunning and utter depravity of the sellers of dope are two of the chief problems in the campaign to counteract their dangerous activity. Since I have been writing this series of articles for the Boston American, I have been threatened several times.

Opium smoking among so-called highbrows in Boston has been increasing by leaps and bounds in recent years. Society boys and girls have fallen prey to the opium pedlars, and the organizations for trapping unsuspecting youth with the deadly poison was never so well supplied with funds as today.

It is an absolute fact that the dope evil is not prevalent only in the underworld. Revenue men connected with the narcotic division office have seized large quantities of dope and opium, smoking outfits, hypodermic syringes and incidental paraphernalia. It would make interesting reading to reveal where some of the yen hoks, pills, yen shee gows and other items of the smoker's and addict's equipment were found. But that is not the purpose of my series of articles.

I have not and will not reveal any names in this series of stories. Were I to do so it might shock the nation, but it might also ruin many a career.

But I do want to impress upon the public the fact that drugs are flooding New England from every direction. Much of it is smuggled by water. Some comes from Canada and the rest is brought in from other States. The supply was never as great as it is today.

The terrible part of it all is the large percentage of so-called reputable physicians who participate in the traffic, lured by the big profits.

Those who doubt the extent of the traffic should remember the spectacle of eighteen young, attractive, intelligent and well educated girls who were recently brought into a police court in a Western city.

Every one of them was half-mad with cocaine. These girls came from high schools. They were the daughters of well-to-do families. They were all girls who participated in "snow parties" just for the fun of it.

That's the terrible part of the traffic—those who start the habit "just for the fun of it."

I quote Abraham C. Webber, New England authority on the dope traffic, who said:

"Like the man sitting on a powder barrel smoking a pipe, oblivious of danger, the American public seems to be utterly indifferent to the great peril of drugs."

And then I say that the most cheerful thing about this dreadful situation is the fact that EVERY USER OF DRUGS CAN BE CURED OF THE HABIT AS I WAS CURED.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

The opening of May sees more satisfactory conditions than existed at the opening of either April or March.

Unhealthy, inflationary symptoms then in evidence have been largely eliminated. Operations are now being conducted more soundly. The actual producing of goods, the actual movement of goods, the actual consumption of goods have not lessened. What has happened has been abatement of excited ordering of goods for distant delivery at fancy prices and the disappearance of high premiums for early shipments.

In other words, manufacturing plants, retail stores and the railroads are as busy as before; only speculative ordering has quieted down.

Whereas March brought rather feverish conditions which begot alarm in thoughtful minds, April has been characterized by more healthy symptoms and activities.

The net result is that a more hopeful view of the outlook is now justified.

Had a will been been careering along, such an episode as we are witnessing in sugar might have precipitated widespread trouble. It is often said that a single shot fired by a weak-minded fanatic caused the World War. Such a shot would not have brought on a world-wide war had not conditions been ripe. Despite tell us that when the human system gets into a very weak condition, sickness can be started by the most trivial cause. So it is with our economic system; when tremendously high blood-pressure—inflation—develops, there is no telling how unimportant an incident may precipitate a grave relapse.

Of course, however, too severe deflationary measures must be avoided. Secretary of Commerce Hoover's order to stop all public building, coming at a time when the business and speculative page was becoming reckless, had a salutary effect. But the Federal Reserve Board acted wisely in not advancing rediscount rates when impractical theories were clamoring for it to do so.

The tendency to fly to one extreme having been checked, we all must guard against doing anything to incite flying to the other extreme.

Happily, business is now moving along on a reasonable even keel, and by the exercise of prudent caution all around, there is no reason within sight why good times should not continue.

Latest developments have been balancing one another, so to speak.

Oil production has been running at a volume never before reached. But the week brought declines in both crude oil and gasoline prices.

Steel output is notably heavy. But buyers have ceased to bid up prices on one another.

Sugar has moved higher. But copper has receded to 16½ cents a pound.

Sterling has fallen to a new low point for the year. But French francs have advanced quite sharply.

February export figures, published some little time ago, revealed an increase of fully $50,000,000 over the previous year. But now come the import statistics showing expansion of more than $80,000,000, cutting down the excess of exports to only $11,100,000 for the month, the smallest balance for any month since 1914.

Both stocks and bonds, on quieter trading, ranged fractionally during the week. But the Federal Reserve Bank came along with their weekly report showing a rise of 1¼ per cent. in reserves, to the high point of the year, 77 per cent.

Offsetting the spectacular rise in sugar, there were again more declines than advances in wholesale commodity prices last week, making the preponderance of the declines for the full month quite marked.

The American Woolen Company announced price advances "ranging from 10 to 60 cents per yard for duplicate orders on Fall lines of men's wear fabrics." But the mercantile agencies reported that "wholesale buying and bookings by manufacturers for the further future are again quieter, while collections still lag," and that there was "no betterment of new buying" and a "check to the rise of prices."

If labor continues to act as reasonably as it has been acting, necessary wage readjustments in directions where readjustment has not yet been made ought to be effected without disturbance. If the halt which has been called in the rise of the cost of living proves permanent rather than temporary, the prospect for avoiding the much-discussed "vicious circle" will be brighter, a consideration of the first importance.

Surveying the whole situation at home and taking into account the possibility of early action of a helpful nature in Europe, as well as the prospect of re-establishment of friendly official relations with Mexico, there is every reason to look for—and to work for—good, healthy, active business and full-time employment.

Sugar Stocks Group Is Depressed Further By Menace Of Buyers' Boycott

STEELS STEADY IN A SOFT MARKET

Sugar stocks group was further depressed in New York today by the menace of a buyers' boycott against the refined product, which was slanted chiefly by several companies. The market as a whole was soft, though steels held fairly steady. Money renewed at 5% per cent., which did not tend to stimulate any bullish enthusiasm.

Speculative sentiment was still unsettled at the opening.

Call money's unwillingness to meet margin calls, combined with a resumption of bear operations in various sections of the list, imparted a heavy tone to most opening prices.

Selling pressure was most effective in Sugar, oil, sugar, independent steel and railroad shares, but the initial declines, as a rule, were limited in fractions.

Eastman Kodak dropped two points in reflection of governmental anti-trust proceedings against that concern.

Speculators for the decline increased their offerings as trading progressed and initial losses were well extended. Oils and sugars were the hardest hit, losses of 1 to 2 points being recorded in General Asphalt, Conden, Phillips Petroleum, Marland, American Sugar, Punta Alegre, Cuba Cane preferred and Cuban-American.

Eastman Kodak extended its loss to 3 points and InPont dropped 2¾. Losses of a point or more also were established by Crucible and Gulf State Steels, Davison Chemical, Tobacco Products and Stewart-Warner Speedometer, the last named dropping 4¼.

The only outstanding strong spot was consolidated Cigar, which advanced a point.

Foreign exchanges opened firm. Demand sterling advanced half a cent to $4.63¾ and French francs advanced 1 point to 6.78 cents.

LABOR FAMINE IS FELT BY BUSINESS

New York, April 30.—Psychology, not economy, is the chief factor in the permanence of the present period of prosperity.

When the majority of buyers decide that further bidding up of commodity prices is futile and act on their decision, then the upward movement will begin a year and a half ago will have been checked.

There seems to be evidence to support the new view that further price advances can have little influence in increasing production which early in the year attained record-breaking magnitude.

The chief limiting factor in the output of goods is no longer the insensitive which high prices and large profits give, but rather an inadequate supply of the human element in manufacturing labor.

GILLETTE IS SOLD AT RECORD HIGH

Gillette Safety Razor set a new high record today on the New York Curb at 290½.

Wall St. Gossip

DURING week ended April 21 Pennsylvania Railroad regional system handled 171,427 loaded revenue freight cars, most for any week this year.

CHICAGO, Milwaukee and St. Paul has been granted authority to issue not exceeding $10,000,000 general mortgage 5s to be sold not later than October 31 at price to net the vendor not less than 90.

STATEMENT that Stewart-Warner should benefit by continuance of bull market seems applicable to a good many issues.

CANADIAN Pacific officials deny "the company is buying New Haven stock." Whatever the truth regarding the ruling of final, it is hardly likely the company would do the buying.

TOBACCO stocks are increasingly the subject of bullish interest.

MARKET opinions on International Paper seem widely split, but the fact of good earnings is unlikely soon to be erased.

CHASE National Bank, at April 3 call of comptroller of currency, had deposits of $421,272,458, making it second largest national bank in the country, with respect to deposits.

FIRST quarter results show Union Pacific earnings at annual rate of $18 a share; Southern Central $20; New York Central $20; Chesapeake & Ohio $15; Southern Pacific $12; Norfolk & Western $9; Southern Railway $15 and Kansas City Southern $8.

CHANDLER continues to be bought by insiders who believe the company's earnings warrant higher selling level.

THERE is talk of $1 dividend on Consolidated Gas if earnings hold up as they are running.

COPPERS are liable to attack on strength of lower quotations for the red metal.

EDWARDS MANUFACTURING.

To H. J., Acadia street—Condensed analysis you request follows: Edwards Manufacturing Co. incorporated in 1922 in Maine. Plant at Augusta, Me. Equipped with 74,816 spindles and 2,028 looms. Manufacturers print cloth and light fancies. Capital $1,100,000. No funded debt. Surplus and reserves June 30 1922, $1,194,248. Present dividend rate 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, February and August 1.

CALIFORNIA STANDARD.

C. F., Helen street—Possibilities of Standard Oil of California appear to me to B more in holding for the long pull than in immediate action.

Net earnings of $27,019,813 reported for 1922, after depletion, depreciation and taxes, were equal to $13.23 a share on 8,179,275 shares $25 par stock. In 1921 net of $32,588,221 was equal to $5.31 a share on 6,000,000 shares. Company paid a 100 per cent. stock dividend in 1922.

Regarding smaller earnings last year, President Kingsbury says that while volume of sales was greater, increased surplus production of crude oil resulted in a decline in value, and the company received lower prices for its products. These conditions, coupled with reduced values of inventories, resulted in smaller net profits than in 1921.

Consolidated income account for 1922 compares as follows:

	1922	1921
Net earnings.....	$42,322,823	$50,520,409

WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION was formed for the purpose of conducting the oil and gas producing and marketing business, chiefly in the States of Wyoming, Montana, and California, but in acquiring properties it has included valuable acreage and production in the Mid-Continent Field as well. The policy of acquiring developed and producing acreage, equipment and things appertaining thereto, to the extent of at least seventy-five percent (75%) of available capital at all times is favored by the Company management, and these acquisitions usually include areas of undeveloped acreage. In pursuance of this policy, the following acquisitions have been made,—wherein the WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION owns all of the stock, or more than the control of the Common Stock of the following Companies and properties:—

1. REPUBLIC PRODUCING COMPANY. 2. MILES OIL CORPORATION. 3. PETERS PETROLEUM CORPORATION.

Total Acreage	Total Producing Wells	Total Drilling Wells	Daily Capacity Oil Production

This Production is Fully Guaranteed to Western States Oil Corporation

A more detailed statement as to the assets and properties of WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION'S subsidiaries is appended hereto.

MIDDLE STATES OIL CORPORATION and THE SOUTHERN STATES OIL CORPORATION, being the two largest stockholders of WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION, and represented on the Board of Directors and Executive Committee of WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION, have our co-operation in pursuing the policies of those two Companies in the general conduct of business, production of oil and gas, and dealing in those commodities, and in providing the equipment for necessary transportation and storage upon the general policy that three-fourths of the available capital of the Company shall be employed in proven territory and in tangible assets, relieved of speculative features of new oil development, to the end that our stockholders should have at all times the opportunity of a stable stock, readily salable above its par value, supported and justified by an early dividend basis of not less than Twelve percent (12%) per annum. That not more than the remaining one-fourth of the available capital shall be employed in new oil development work, to the end that additional income to our stockholders may be justified by this new development work.

All persons should understand that this new oil development work is speculative and may, or may not have profitable results. We can only say that the entire management of our Company will use their best judgment and most active efforts, and particularly in the territory where we are developing it is reasonable to expect very gratifying results in the new development department.

These same policies, pursued in large part in MIDDLE STATES OIL CORPORATION and in SOUTHERN STATES OIL CORPORATION, have, during the entire life of both of these Corporations, produced unusually stable and profitable results to their stockholders.

MIDDLE STATES OIL CORPORATION, now in its seventh year, began money dividend payments in October, 1917, at the rate of Six percent (6%) per annum, until April, 1918; from that time to the present, regular Twelve percent (12%) per annum, with an occasional extra money dividend, and a total of One hundred and ninety-two percent (192%) free stock allotment, and additional privileges from time to time.

Results to stockholders of MIDDLE STATES OIL CORPORATION, including those who originally paid Seventeen dollars and fifty cents ($17.50) for a Ten dollar ($10) share, are that there never has been a time that the stockholder could not sell his original stock, with its accumulations, at a price that would yield him a handsome profit on his original investment, in addition to the fact that he has received more than Twenty percent (20%) per annum in cash dividends on his original investment. MIDDLE STATES stock, traded in on the New York Stock Exchange since October, 1919, has never sold below par, even in the long, strenuous Bear market following the war; and in addition to the distributions of money and stock heretofore made, it is the belief of the management that the steady efforts to accumulate assets of permanent earning value and to develop oil production will insure continued stability and better results than even the reasonable optimist has anticipated.

THE SOUTHERN STATES OIL CORPORATION, organized about one year ago, selling its Ten dollar ($10) shares of Common Stock in the beginning at about Twelve and one-half dollars ($12.50) per share, began paying One percent (1%) monthly cash dividends in July, 1922, and is regularly making these monthly payments. In addition to the money dividends, and based on new development work and acquisitions, THE SOUTHERN STATES OIL CORPORATION'S stockholders have received three quarterly stock allotments, totaling above Twenty-three percent (23%) of their original holdings. SOUTHERN STATES' stock is now being traded in on the New York Curb Market at around Twenty-four dollars ($24) per share.

This general policy of conducting the oil producing business, we believe, eliminates the chance for loss, insures moderate income, and provides possible opportunity for very large income, without danger of loss greater than would be incurred in usual lines of business.

Both MIDDLE STATES OIL CORPORATION and SOUTHERN STATES favor the policy of carrying no bonded or other indebtedness, other than operating and incidental expenses.

ADDITIONAL CAPITAL

From the foregoing statements and inventories, it will be observed we have excellent opportunity for the use of greater working capital, and to that end, we have sold additional capital stock to Unity Securities Corporation, which is now offering the same for resale.

We can fairly assume the early beginning of dividend payments, and as soon as practicable, proper application will be made to list this stock on public exchanges.

WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION,
By J. V. McCLINTIC, President.

April 28, 1923.

THE UNDERSIGNED, members of Executive Committee of WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION, which makes the foregoing statement,—the accuracy of which is certified by managing officers of the several subsidiary companies, in whose experience and correctness we fully rely,—presents a condition of assets compared to liabilities which we feel would warrant us in recommending the stock of WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION to all those who may approve the policy in the production of oil and gas that our Companies have heretofore found successful, i. e., not less than three-fourths of the Corporation's working capital be employed in proven territory, well drilling, oil production, storage, marketing, equipment, transportation and appurtenances, and not over one-fourth in new development or speculative endeavor. Time has demonstrated in both MIDDLE STATES OIL CORPORATION'S and SOUTHERN STATES OIL CORPORATION'S business that this policy provides stockholders a general market value for their stock above par, and a substantial, regular dividend income; and should prove the same result for the stockholders of WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION, even though the percentage employed in new development or speculative undertaking should completely fail. It is our opinion, however, that WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION'S new development work should produce exceptionally profitable results, but even average results in this new development undertaking should add a large speculative value over and above the steady-going, substantial value that we feel sure the Company's operations in proven territory will sustain.

From these considerations we feel justified in our opinion that all those who become Stockholders in WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION at this offering will not only have a stable annual income of Twelve percent (12%), or better, but that their speculative prospects, in addition to the stable income, will be highly satisfactory.

WESTERN STATES OIL CORPORATION,
C. N. HASKELL,
P. D. SAKLATVALA,
SCOTT FERRIS,
Members of Executive Committee.

U. S. WILL JOIN IN FLOGGING INQUIRY

By the Associated Press.

Tallahassee, Fla., April 30.—The Federal government has stepped into Florida's convict flogging affairs, it became known here today when Fred Cubberly, United States district attorney, announced he had under consideration making the leasing of Ned Thompson, sixty-five-year-old negro, by J. R. Jones, deposed sheriff of Leon County, to the Putnam Lumber Company, a subject of a Federal Grand Jury investigation.

Thimpson is now dead, dying, it is contended, in the Leon County jail after having been leased to the Putnam Lumber Company and returned by them because he was not physically fit to perform hard labor.

An agent of the Department of Justice arrived here several days ago and conducted an inquiry as to whether Thompson was held in peonage. He made a report to Mr. Cuberly, who is now laying plans to present the matter to the Grand Jury, which convenes in Pensacola during the first part of May.

Famed Artist Scorned In Boston Is Dead

Hub-Bub
STORIES OF BOSTON TOWN
By Jo Swerling

WHAT NEXT? HUB-BUB DISCOVERED BOSTON'S FASTEST messenger boy—a woman. In Revere we located a girl truck-driver. In the chorus of a Boston show we found a woman lawyer. And now here's the Ice Woman—Mrs. Amena Rottler of Watertown. She swings a mean ice tong and bosses seven helpers, including her husband.

TO THE LADIES

This is a toast, Madame Boston, as well as a communication. I ask you what's coming over you? The Boston directory is full of women doctors. Dozens of you play Portia in our law courts every day. Lizzie Murphy gets $300 a week for playing professional baseball. Mary Roberts Rinehart has incorporated. You have invaded the police department. You've horned into Congress. You wear the robes of a judge. You occupy pulpits. You run taxicabs. You win Marathon dances. You wield razors in barber shops.

The fastest messenger boy in Boston is a woman. A little Italian girl in Revere drives a baker's truck with the best of 'em. And now, Madam, I want to tell you about Mrs. Amena Rottler of Watertown, Greater Boston's first and only ice woman.

This doesn't mean that Mrs. Rottler sits in an office and answers the phone. She's not a bookkeeper in an ice company's office. She's the Ice Woman. She is president, treasurer, secretary and general manager of the Ideal Ice Co., which supplies ice to many residents of Watertown and Allston, in the face of awesome competition.

No Laughing Matter for Ice Trust

This will furnish fine material for the cartoonists. They will all remember the old song, the burden of which was: "All I could get from the Ice Man, was ice, ice, ice!" They will fiddle ink their conjectures about the Ice Woman. They will have their laugh.

But it's no laughing matter. The Ice Trust won't find it a laughing matter. Listen to your sister talk:

"They told me when I picked out the Ice business I was taking an awful chance. But so far I have found it not only agreeable but darned profitable. I don't mind telling you that I've cut prices, and I do a great business—so great that I've got to put on more help and get me a ten-ton truck.

"Have you ever stopped to consider why buys the ice? Women, of course. That's what first decided me to go into the business. I figured that women like to do business with women—have more confidence in women. And I was right. The results prove it."

To see Mrs. Rottler swing ice tongs is a revelation. The chunks of ice she handles weigh more than she does, for she's only 5 feet 2 and tips her own scales at 120. She's twenty-five years old and married. Her husband works. He's on her payroll. She pays him liberal wages—$35 a week. That's what she pays her other six helpers who drive the trucks for her. And when trade is brisk she hops aboard a truck herself and attends to the delivery of the ice.

Early on Job Every Morning

Every morning at 5 o'clock she gets up and goes to her receiving station at Union and Market streets, Watertown, where she personally supervises the unloading of the ice. She checks up the ice allotted to the various drivers, including her husband, and waits at the station until the trucks come back for more ice.

She's the works, this Ice Woman. And she makes me wonder how many other women there are in Boston who have stepped into trades, professions and businesses heretofore monopolized by men.

Are there any women janitors? Plumbers? Carpenters? Locomotive engineers or firemen? Prize fighters? Football stars? Longshoremen? Street cleaners? Newsboys? Shoe shiners?

What profession has appealed most to women? What woman has the oddest profession in Boston?

Write Hub-Bub and we'll get a line on this remarkable invasion of women.

MYSTERY MAN MAY BE KING BENJAMIN

Marysville, O., April 30.—Michigan authorities are expected here today to attempt identification of a man believed by Sheriff Charles Collier to be "King" Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David of Benton Harbor, Mich. The man admitted, the sheriff said, that he had been a member of the House of David, but insisted he was "not the man they want." When arrested he had a money bag full of bills and coins.

BRITISH SCHOONER SINKS; 9 PERISH

By International News Service.

London, April 30.—Word was received here today that the schooner Amy Turner had foundered near Guam with the loss of Captain Nelson, his wife and nine members of the crew. Three other members of the crew were picked up after drifting for twenty-five days in an open boat.

FIVE GIRLS IN LOWELL MISSING

Camps at Summer Resorts Searched After Note From One Victim Is Found

Lowell, April 30.—Because of the disappearance of five girls in this city during the past few days, the police have created a thorough search of the city and neighboring towns in an effort to clear up the mystery surrounding the unusual cases.

Mary Curtin, twenty years old, disappeared Friday evening. April 20. Beatrice Heiser, sixteen, disappeared last Friday evening and the police have started a search of the camps at Lake View Park, four miles from here, when a note was found in a girl's handwriting stating she was being carried to a camp there against her will.

Two more girls, Edith Chase, eighteen, and Solome Croft, twenty, were reported as missing from the State Infirmary in Tewksbury.

The Heiser girl was a stranger here, having arrived here with her parents from Kingston, N. Y., on the afternoon of her disappearance, and is one of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. George Heiser.

URGE FEDERAL GRANTS TO AID FORESTS

Governor Cox has written, and a delegation of forestry experts, newspaper publishers, lumber and paper manufacturers and others will go to Washington tomorrow to see President Harding in support of a proposal to resume the $2,000,000 annual federal appropriation for purchase of forest lands.

The Governor, in his letter, said that the National Forest Commission in recent years had been unable to acquire land in competition with lumber companies because of the reduced appropriations.

"As the lumber operations in all parts of the White Mountains are excessive, including the high slopes, except on those tracts already acquired by the Government," Governor Cox write, "I most earnestly urge in the interest of the water powers of Massachusetts the approval, insofar as the circumstances warrant, of such increases in the appropriation this year as may permit the completion of the program at the earliest practical moment."

600 BABIES AT HUB BABY SHOW

A baby show with more than 600 babies competing for 150 prizes offered to the youngsters judged to be the best in the class, is expected to draw a great deal of attention at the Home Beautiful Exposition, at Mechanics Building this week. There will be a contest to find the most beautiful baby, the fattest baby, the smallest baby, the most ingenuous baby and the best twins. The twins and fat babies will participate today.

OIL WASTE STARTS $15,000 MILL FIRE

East Rochester, N. H., April 30.—Loss of $15,000 was caused by a fire started by combustion of oil waste in the clipping room of J. Spaulding & Sons, Inc., here. This section of the town has no fire apparatus and engines were sent from Rochester and Milton. Automatic sprinklers kept the fire in hand until the apparatus arrived.

PASTOR TO ANSWER COAST CALL BY AUTO

REV. EDWARD D. GAYLORD.

HUB PREACHER WILL MOVE TO LOS ANGELES

Reverend Edward D. Gaylord, for nearly seven years pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church at Upham's Corner, Dorchester, has accepted a call from the Church of the Messiah, Los Angeles, and will motor there with his wife and four children.

"We'll leave about July 1 and reach the coast the middle of August, making easy jumps and stopping over at Syracuse and Oak Park, Ill., where my former pastorates were," the pastor said. "We'll also take in New York city, Omaha, Salt Lake City and the Yosemite Valley."

Mr. Gaylord's Sunday school is one of the largest in Greater Boston. He lives at No. 21 Trull street.

His eldest son, Edward, is a freshman at Amherst and the fourth in direct line to attend that college. Mr. Gaylord graduated in 1899. His son Donald, seventeen, is in his third year at Boston Latin, and his daughters, Eleanor, eleven, and Charlotte, nine, are in grammar school.

FAMILY OF DORCHESTER PASTOR

MAYOR PROMISES MORE TO EMPLOYES

"I have given my word that the pay of city employes will be raised February 1 and I will keep my word," Mayor Curley assured a mass meeting of city employes in the South End municipal building.

"Three cheers for our next governor," responded an enthusiastic woman in the crowd and they were given.

The mayor explained that the only reason the raise did not come now was lack of money due to bills contracted by his predecessors and need of motorizing the fire department in preparation for the two-platoon system.

WINE LEFT BY SEARS PUZZLES RECIPIENT

When a teetotaler comes legitimately into possession of a cellar stocked with rare wines worth a fortune, what is his proper course of procedure?

This is the problem of Harry L. Bailey, former mill boy, bequeathed the million dollar Weston estate and wine cellar of Horce Scudder Sears.

He can not sell the liquor or give it away—his principles forbid him drinking it or entertaining his friends.

CHINESE ARRESTED IN PITTSFIELD RAID

Pittsfield, April 30.—Yen Lee of No. 75 West street was arrested by Federal narcotic agents in a drug raid here. He was found smoking opium, it is alleged, and a "layout" was seized.

SON MUST WORK, SAYS WAITT

Youth Married Salesgirl With Understanding He Would Support Himself

As soon as Henry F. Waitt, heir to the Waitt cigar fortune, and his bride, who was Miss Mary C. Stappen, Newton salesgirl, return from their honeymoon, young Waitt must get busy and find himself a job.

"I am not going to support him and he understands it," declares his father, Albert H. Waitt. "Henry is twenty-two years old and competent to earn his living."

DENIES ELOPEMENT.

At the same time the elder Waitt denied the couple had eloped, said he had helped the school day sweethearts to get married, which they did with his approval and co-operation.

"He married Miss Stappen with my approval and co-operation," he added. "I helped to secure the five-day waiver for them and took them to the Newton city clerk, who married them. She is a fine little girl and she told me she was willing to go to work herself if necessary. She understands perfectly that Henry will have to make his own way in the world.

NEVER HAD MILLION.

"All this talk about my being a millionaire is wrong. The Waitt fortune never totailed $1,000,000 dollars. My income is but $34,000 a year—hardly the income of a millionaire.

"The stories that the boy eloped with Miss Stappen are all bosh. He had known her and kept company with her more or less ever since their high school days in Newton.

"The young folks are now on a honeymoon trip to Putnam, Ct., where the bride has relatives. When they get back Henry will find himself a job. Now that he is married he will give up following the sea, where he was a wireless operator."

Young Waitt, his bride-elect and his father appeared at the home of City Clerk Frank Grant of Newton Saturday night. The marriage intentions were filed then. Application was made to Judge Edward W. Blodgett of Natick District Court for a waiver of the five-day law. This was granted. Next the couple returned to City Clerk Grant, who performed the ceremony.

7,000 BUILDING LABORERS ARE READY TO QUIT

A strike of 7,000 building laborers threatens to tie up building operations in Greater Boston.

The laborers have broken off negotiations with the Building Trades Employers' Association because of differences on the question of pay.

The workers accepted the recent two-year agreement, brought about by Mayor Curley, with the understanding that the five-cent an hour raise now and additional five-cent increase July 1 would be added to the 1920 schedule when common laborers were paid 67½ cents an hour and the more skilled were given 76 cents an hour.

The employers insisted that the increases be added to the present scale of 65 and 60 cents an hour.

Since the breaking off of negotiations the laborers have voted to demand a flat wage of 80 cents an hour. They say that 75 and 85 cents an hour is being paid on most contracts handled by contractors outside the employers' association.

A special meeting of the union has been called for Sunday at Paine Memorial Hall, No. 9 Appleton street, South End.

AN APOLOGY TO BROOKLINE HIGH

The Boston American apologizes to Dean Sawyer of the Brookline High School and to the students of that institution. Investigation reveals that a story published in the American last week to the effect that the dean had administered a severe lecture to students and warned them against the use of rouge, smoking or conducting themselves in ultra-flapper fashion, is without foundation. No lecture such as was described in the American's story was given, for the simple reason that there was no necessity for it. This is a voluntary retraction. No request was made to the Boston American.

Women's Clothing Industry Doubles in 7 Years

Washington, April 30.—Women are wearing twice as much as they did in 1914. More than a billion dollars' worth of women's clothing was manufactured in 1921. Less than half that amount was manufactured in 1914.

The statistics include girls' and children's wear and do not take into account the value of millinery, laces, corsets or knit goods. The figures represent manufacturers' prices.

VALERA BACKERS IGNORE HIS PEACE EDICT

Dublin, April 30.—Republicans are active throughout County Dublin. Race track grandstand and stables were burned at Baldoyle. The incendiaries escaped.

By DENIS O'CONNELL,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, April 30.—De Valera's order for the cessation of hostilities before noon today has been ignored by the Republicans. On the contrary a renewed campaign of arson and terror was begun.

Under cover of darkness a land mine was set and exploded just outside the Amiens street railroad depot. The whole place was blown to atoms. The whole station was shaken by the force of the explosion, as was the Central cable station nearby.

The bomb exploded just as the train for Drogheda was leaving the station. Fifteen girls, three soldiers and two other men were seriously injured.

The explosion was followed by volleys from rifles and revolvers, many of the bullets breaking windows in the trains. Scores of passengers narrowly escaped injuries.

Five taxicabs filled with armed men stormed and placed a huge mine under a dry goods store in one of the suburbs of Dublin and wrecked the premises.

More than $75,000 damage was done. Assistants living on the premises had narrow escapes.

CUNO CONSULTS U. S. ENVOY ON REPARATIONS

London, April 30. (By the Associated Press).—The British, American and Italian Ambassadors conferred today with Chancellor Cuno regarding Germany's new reparation offer, says a Central News dispatch from Berlin this afternoon.

Pirna, Germany, April 30.—"The Cuno government will stand or fall by its policy in the Ruhr," declared Minister of Justice Heinze, in a speech here today. "The government has taken an unshakeable position in this battle."

Essen, April 30. (By International News Service).—So many coke ovens in the Ruhr have been closed down by the French that coke production has fallen 80 per cent, it was claimed by the Germans today. Only coke for local use is being made.

CONGRESSMAN OPENS OFFICE FOR "KICKERS"

Washington, D. C., April 29.—Representative Martin L. Davey (Ohio) has inaugurated a system of "kick"-receiving and "buck passing" in his district that promises to overwhelm Federal executive departments if it becomes general.

Trying to find some way to serve his constituents during the long vacation, Mr. Davey decided to open a temporary office—for a month—in each of the counties of his district and receive the "complaints of taxpayers."

He will meet his constituents who have fault to find with the government, hear their report and transmit the same to Washington. He estimates that thousands have just complaints.

HUB PAINTER WON RICHES ABROAD

Mark Fisher, Driven to England by Poverty, Dies Wealthy in London Home

Mark Fisher, internationally known pastoral landscape artist, who was driven from his native city of Boston by the apathy of the public, died today at his London home.

Fisher, one of four American artists holding membership in the Royal Academy, was elected an associate in 1911 and a full member in 1919.

After years of virtual poverty while studying here and in Paris, Fisher returned to Boston and staged his first art sale at a Hamilton place gallery. This netted him slightly more than $200. One of his last paintings sold for $25,000.

This lack of response caused him to go to England. His work met with immediate success. He became celebrated almost over night. He began exhibiting in the Royal Academy as early as 1873. He was born in Boston in 1841.

She was last seen running toward the car barns on River street.

MEXICAN LABOR TO LAY OFF ON MAY DAY

Mexico City, April 30 (By Associated Press). — Headquarters of the Regional Labor Federation announce that May Day will see a general suspension of work throughout the republic. The feature of the day here will be the laying of the cornerstone of the monument dedicated to the victims of the Chicago Haymarket riots. Newspapers will not publish, street car service is to be suspended for twenty-four hours, and laborers in all the trades will take the day off.

10,000 MINERS IDLE; DUE TO STRIKE OF 35

Pittston, Pa., April 30.—More than 10,000 anthracite mine workers in this vicinity are idle today because of failure to adjust a strike at the Butler colliery, in effect one week. Fourteen other collieries are shut down. One of the prime reasons for the strike was that thirty-five employes at the Butler colliery refused to pay back dues in the union.

COWBOY PADGETT AND EDDIE SHEVLIN IN ARENA BATTLE

HAMBONE KELLY WILL CLASH WITH CLANCY

By JACK CONWAY.

Cowboy Padgett, typical Western fighting man, says his body blows will enable him to gain a victory over Eddie Shevlin, New England welterweight champion, in their ten-round bout at the Arena A. C.'s show at the Boston Arena tonight.

Padgett has been in Boston for more than a week and has proved he is a two-fisted youth who delights in parading to close quarters, where he is able to do heavy execution.

The cowboy battler came East chiefly so as to get a bout with Mickey Walker for the world's welterweight championship. He was originally carded to meet Dave Shade here, but when the latter withdrew from the contest Shevlin was substituted.

Padgett charges that Shade withdrew from the bout here because he feared defeat. He points to the fact he held Shade to a ten-round draw at Galveston, Tex., and had the Californian in poor condition from body punches.

Eddie Shevlin.

"I am tickled that I am going to get a shot at Shevlin," said Padgett. "As Shevlin has decisions to his credit over Shade, Ward and Doyle, I shall be able to demand consideration from Walker if I win tonight.

"I shall force the issue from the bell. It is my plan to direct my attack at Shevlin's body. I don't believe a veteran like the Roxbury man can stand up under heavy bombardment to the mid-section. I had Shade almost out in the last round of our bout at Galveston. That's why he ran out of his match with me in Boston. I don't think Shevlin is any better able to assimilate body smashes than Shade."

While training in this city Padgett has wrecked a flock of perfectly good sparring partners. He does not believe in using shock absorbers on his wallops even during a gym workouts. He parades to close quarters and whangs away for all he is worth.

Shevlin Says He Will Punch With Westerner.

Shevlin, fresh from his nine-round victory over Jimmy Murphy at Providence, says he will not resort to clever boxing to win tonight.

"I shall stand up and swap blows with the cowboy," declared the New England champion. "I want to secure another bout with Dave Shade and I think that the quickest way to accomplish this result is by knocking out the man whom the California refused to meet for a second time.

"The average fan merely rates me as a clever boxer. My record, however, shows that I have stopped more rivals than any prominent welterweight. My body blows wear down the opposition and enable me to win in the latter rounds of a contest."

Re-Opening of Arena Stirs Up Interest of the Fans

The reopening of the Arena tonight has stirred up great interest in fistic circles. This is the only large building where boxing contests can be staged with any degree of regularity.

Matchmaker Tom Goodwin put on some brilliant cards last season and expects to equally well this year. As there are seats for 1,000 and standing room for 2,000 more at the Arena, it is possible to promote matches between the leading boxers in the country.

Hambone Kelly to Show In the Semi-Final

Hambone Kelly of South Boston will furnish the action with Biff Clancey of New York in the semi-final of eight rounds. Kelly has been training faithfully and is confident of his ability to smash his way out front in the middleweight division. Clancey is a strong, rugged fellow with a punch and is of the opinion that he will upset Hambone's plans.

Jack Conway Picks Shevlin to Win in Tough Battle

W		L
55	Last	9

Jack Conway says: "Cowboy Padgett is the toughest piece of fighting machinery that has come out of the West since Battling Nelson came to to Boston for his bouts with Billy Nixon, Johnny Saylor and Philadelphia Pal Moore.

"This new sensation was good enough to get a draw with Dave Shade at Galveston, Tex. As he is a heavy body puncher, Eddie Shevlin, New England welterweight champion, will have to display all of his amazing speed and boxing ability to gain the victory. But as Shevlin always seems to fight better in his big tests, we are picking him to win.

"Any sap can do well when there is not anything at stake. It takes a real, red-blooded man when the opposition is more powerful and better than the ordinary performance is required to be to reach the heights of success."

CARD OF ACTION FOR LYNN TONIGHT

Jack Murphy of the Casino A. C., of Lynn has combined quality with quantity for tonight's show and the Shoe City fans should see one of the best shows of the season.

Nick Madonna.

Zu Zu Zurelli of Boston and Ruby Levine of Lewiston will open the show in an eight-rounder. This pair met at weeks ago and the bout was fast and furious until the fifth round when Zurelli was forced to quit owing to a bad cut over his eye.

Nick Madonna, the knockout kid from Lexington, will meet Harold Sullivan of South Boston in an eight. Both boys are aggressive and hard punchers and it looks like a good contest.

Another eight will see Irish Kid Williams of Worcester and Frankie Buff of Boston, swapping punches. Williams is a fast, clever boxer who is a master at the hit and get away game. In Buff he will meet one of the hardest punchers in the game who carries a knock-out in both hands.

In the final ten-rounder Jack Dillon of Woburn will meet the stiffest opposition of his career when he faces Freddy Warren of South Boston. Dillon's rise in the boxing game has been sensational. Less than a year ago he was unknown and today he is regarded by good judges of boxing as one of the most likely candidates for championship honors ever developed in New England.

Julian and Tiplitz in the Triple A Feature Go

The Armory A. A. show will be held on Wednesday at the Grand Opera House. The club presents a finely balanced card. Tony Julian of Brockton will meet Joe Tiplitz of Philadelphia in the main event of ten rounds. Julian and Tiplitz were matched some time ago, but they did not meet. But the Brockton scrapper, in the words of the Western writer's argot, says he'd admire to have a tussle with the sturdy Quaker.

There are three other Brockton boys, Tony Auretta, Young Reed and Jimmy Smith on the bill. Auretta is down to try conclusions with Billy Nelson of Lowell. Jimmy Stewart of Brooklyn is Reed's opponent and Spike Hennessey is paired with Smith.

AMATEURS BATTLE AT EAST BOSTON

The amateur boxing tournament of the Fitton Council, K. of C., of East Boston, which is to be held on Friday evening, is sure to provide plenty of competition, as the boys who have entered are very evenly matched.

Charley White of Boston University, Victor Dallas, Gus LaMonica, both of East Boston, and Paul Lalarro of Newton have entered for the 126 pound class. White is the star performer of the Boston University boxing team. The other boxers are noted for their aggressiveness and their bouts will undoubtedly produce some sensational mulling.

The classes for the coming tourney are 115, 126, 135, 147 and heavyweight. Entries close with Tommy Regan, No. 36 Neptune road, East Boston.

SOMERVILLE ELKS TO STAGE BOXING BOUTS

Followers of the amateur boxing game will have another chance to watch the "simon pures" in action when the Somerville Lodge of Elks puts on its big open show, Thursday evening at their club-house, 29 Central street. Five open classes—112, 115, 126, 135 and 147 pounds—on the card, and a large number of entries have already been received. John S. McGowan, Elk's club-house, 29 Central street, Somerville, has charge of the entries.

PICKED SOCCER ELEVENS FOR BENEFIT

By ART CURLEY.

The North Massachusetts and New Hampshire State Football Association have decided that the present season is too far advanced to attempt to hold the annual Paton cup competition, but as this series is for the sole benefit of Injured players, the governing body has requested each of its affiliated leagues and associations to play an exhibition for the benefit of the fund.

Pat McDermott

The Boston and District League has decided to play an exhibition game for this worthy fund Sunday, May 13, at Marcella street, between two elevens made up of the best available players in the local league. The teams will be known as the Blues and Whites.

Following is the list of players, their position and club picked by the international committee to represent the teams:

WORLD'S RECORD PROVES ATHLETIC PROGRESS

By LAWSON ROBERTSON.
Track Coach of the University of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 20.—For the fourth time in eight years a new world's record was made in the classic two-mile relay when the great group of Penn State runners provided the sensation of the twenty-ninth annual relay carnival on Franklin Field.

To my mind this indicates great strides forward in track during this period. It shows conclusively the runners are improving each year both in speed and in strategy of performances.

In 1916 Yale set a mark of 7:53 and many track fans thought the ultimate had been reached until the gallant Oxford-Cambridge team in 1920 shoved the mark down to 7:50 2-5. Then last year Pennsylvania, with George Meredith, Johnny Holden, Ed McMullen and Larry Brown, shattered it to bits by doing 7:49 2-5.

Although I had expected Penn State to win the two-mile, I believed they had only an outside chance at the best for the world's record. This they did in 7:48 4-5, however.

Allan Helfrich

Schuyler Enck, the former West Philadelphia athlete, and who formerly was a miler, running the third relay for Penn State, really broke up the race. He is a big, long striding fellow with an ideal build for a half-miler, and should be a factor in this year's Intercollegiates.

He did approximately 1:56, as against 1:57 2-5 for Miller of Oxford, thus throwing quite an advantage to Allan Helfrich, his anchor man. Helfrich seems practically in a class by himself in the half-mile this season, and he reeled off 1:54 and might even have done a fraction of a second better had he been hard pressed. As it was, he finished 40 yards ahead of Captain Bill Milligan, the Oxonian anchor man.

Stevenson Tried to Do the Impossible

Billy Stevenson, formerly a wonderful quarter-miler at Princeton had attempted the impossible in raising his distance to the half-mile, as I previously pointed out. A runner can lower his distance, but hardly ever increase it. For instance, Enck has lowered his distance, for formerly he was a miler.

Stevenson was quite a disappointment, he ran 2:02 rather slow time and had he been say five seconds faster, Milligan, who is always best, if he can get a lead, might have made a neck and neck battle of it with Helfrich in the final hundred yards or so. Howittson did about an expected considering the fact he wasn't in the pink of condition and reeled off 2:00. Milligan ran in 1:56, the best time of all for Oxford.

Penn State Had Favorable Conditions for the Record

Penn State had favorable conditions for its record. The drizzle that later turned into a veritable downpour had just begun as the runners were getting ready to start, and it didn't affect the track any. The wind, too, was negligible.

As for the Oxford runners, they deserve all the credit in the world. On three occasions, in 1914, in 1920 and this year they have sent teams to this country and on all three occasions they have been victorious, for it must be remembered that on Friday the Oxonians captured the sprint medley event.

Although they placed second to State, this in itself was quite a feat for they beat the cream of the rest of our Eastern teams.

Thus the Third Invasion Was Far From Failure

Thus their third invasion was far from a failure, especially when the short time they had to become acclimated is taked into consideration.

They hope to return again next year. If they do, they may have a team composed entirely of Americans, for Stevenson will still be there while Bohannon and Baker, two very good distance runners from Virginia, have won scholarships and the Englishmen were impressed by the running of these two in their quarter mile races during the present carnival.

Then there is Raymond Jack, of our last year's Pennsylvania team, who is now abroad. Jack can do 51 seconds for the quarter and should make the team.

Oxford Captain Compliments Penn State Runners

"We certainly hope to be back again," commented Captain Milligan. "I had no idea Penn State had such a strong team and I compliment them highly. We performed as far as time was concerned in about what we had expected.

"It's no wonder you have such fine runners with all those men," he said whole-heartedly.

Boston College had a tough break in the two mile event when their first runner had his baton knocked from his hand and was obliged to return for it after the mix-up at the start. With Kirley, their great quarter-miler running at anchor, they might have overtaken Georgetown which finished third.

The Navy furnished the surprise of the afternoon in winning the four-mile event. But had not Moore of Columbia cracked in the last quarter-mile of this four-mile event, however, the New Yorkers would have captured the event.

Harding's Ability as Golfer 'Greatly Exaggerated'

Washington, April 20.—President Harding broke all his previous golf records on the Columbia course when he made the round in 118 strokes. The course is comparable to the Brae Burn and the Country Club courses in the Boston district.

Reports were circulated that the President had made the Southern courses, where he has been practicing, in from eighty-five to eighty-seven strokes.

SCHOOLBOYS UP AGAINST IT FOR LINKS

By FRED C. LANE

The golf teams of English, Latin, Commerce and Dorchester have run against many obstacles in filling their schedules, as they lack suitable courses to play return matches.

Jack Schmerderman

Last season it was possible to play such engagements on the Franklin Field course. As the park department has put a tax of $10 on each golfer, the school golfers are at sea.

A delegation plan to call on the head of the park department so that some arrangement may be made whereby all home matches can be played on the municipal links.

The lads are willing to pay $5.00 if given the privilege to use the local course. That is the limit of the schoolboy pocketbook.

Golf has made tremendous strides in our schools in the last three years, and it's only a question of time before every high school in the city will have a golf team.

All the other large cities encourage golf in the high schools. Some day Boston's players will be called upon to engage in an intercity contest, and unless they are given an opportunity to play and develop they will be outmatched.

The rain of the week-end put a gigantic crimp in the scholastic baseball schedule. Many of the teams that were obliged to postpone their games over will be called upon to play three games this week.

The Suburban and North Shore League teams are slated for two games for the remainder of the season. Saturday's postponements will cause them to play today to keep up with their schedules.

EAGLE NINE HAS THREE GAMES THIS WEEK

Boston College will play three home games this week. The Eagles will face Villanova, Middlebury and Seton Hall before flying to tackle Yale at New Haven next week.

The Eagles will open with Villanova tomorrow. In the first game with the Pennsylvania team the Eagle was given quite a scare, and only managed to win by a 10-9 score.

The Heights team is now in fine midseason form, and with Tony Phillips back in his old place at second, the Eagle ought to hang another victory on the Pennsylvania nine.

Ed Phillips Will Return to His Regular Position.

With Tommy Phillips in the field again Ed Phillips will return to his position behind the plate. Hendrickson will use either Patten or Vargne in the box against the visitors.

Thursday Middlebury will journey down to battle the Eagle. The Vermonters are playing in early season style, and there is little chance that the Heights batters will not have a fine chance to continue their heavy hitting streak. Comerford, Whelan, Wilson and the Phillips brothers are all hitting over .300.

Will Close Busy Week With Seton Hall.

The Eagle will close its busy week on Saturday, when it acts as hosts to Seton Hall. This is the first time in many years that the New Jersey team will be seen in the Hub. They have not, however, a very strong team this season, and should give little opposition to the heavy hitting Heights nine.

Next week the Eagle will take flight on its second excursion into the South. Thursday the squad will stop at New Haven to take on Yale. The Bulldog has been doing poorly so far this year, and there is small chance that they will dent the Eagle victory column.

Plays the Second of Series With Providence.

The following day the Heights nine plays the second of its series with the young Providence College team. In the Boston game of the series the Providence twirlers showed some fine stuff against the heavy hitters of the Eagle squad. The Heights nine, however, is confident of handing the Rhode Islanders a bigger lacing than their recent measly one of 2-0.

On Saturday and Sunday the Eagle will play a two-game series with the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn. The Crescent Club will be the hosts of the Eagle squad during the stay in the Metropolis.

Dual Track Meet Today

The postponed dual track and field meet between Arlington and Lexington high school teams will be staged this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Lexington athletic field.

RED SOX TAKE ON THE ATHLETICS IN FOUR-GAME SERIES

WESTERN TOUR NEXT ON THE CHANCE PROGRAM

By NICK FLATLEY.

Frank Chance and his Red Sox, who have surprised Boston mightily and pleasantly, leave the home acres shortly and get a real test of fighting ability and everything. After reeling off four games here with the Philadelphia Athletics, the Chance trickle to Washington, then proceed to forage through the West

Frank Chance.

They stay away from the native fireside until the 24th of May, and by that time the well-known world will have the real dope on the club. All the Western teams are rated as pennant contenders and the Red Sox will be welcomed with open arms if they can make any kind of a showing on the expedition

The team has impressed Boston fans very favorably. It is fighting and trying all the time, and consequently has started to win. After losing the initial series in the completeness of its four games, the outfit really cut loose and has collected four out of the last six, two out of three from the Athletics and the same dose from the champion Yankees.

And that's mighty good baseball, as the A's are a mighty sweet ball club this year, and the champions are that, at least. Shifting around the line up seems to have given the Peerless one a pretty snappy combination, one that will sock together until an explosion or something happens.

Young Mister Fewster evidently realizing the importance of baseball and tickled to have a steady job has been playing remarkable shortstop for the Spring, and if he doesn't crack he'll be quite a hero in these parts. McMillan is a great improvement over some of the third baseman who have converted at that Pesky, and he looks like a pretty good bird at the saucer regardless of average.

Boston likes the Chance brand of baseball, anyhow—the shifting of players, the quick jump to take advantage of the breaks, the idea that no game is hopeless. Frank had his old Cubs fighting hard all the time, even when they outclassed their league, and now he has his Red Sox doing the same thing, utterly regardless of the fact that they're supposed to be tail enders

Two Yankee Victories Were Well Fought Games

The two Yankee victories here were well fought games by a club that acted as if it liked baseball and knew what to do with a few runs when it had 'em. The Saturday lynch was particularly pleasant, because it came after the invaders had knocked off a couple of setup runs before things were even warmed up

In the days of not so long ago, a Fenway team would casually look those two runs over and call it an other day. But the new box didn't seem to mind the handicap and they looked better than the champs all the way. The one game that was dropped was a hair line affair, coo-nearly pulled out in last ditch

There a only a difference of a little fraction of a run between a champion and a tail-ender in the large leagues and the fighting clubs will win a lot of close games that a flatter team drops. Chance knows that and evidently has been able to inspire his athletes with the correct and proper feeling

The Peerless Pilot is perfectly satisfied with the way things have been going and is delighted with the cordial reception the Boston fans have given him and his pupils

Look Like a Good Ball Club, Says Chance

"We have looked like a pretty good club, Francis explains, "in the last week. We have been winning games, and winning them by fighting. That's what I want. Let a team get the idea that it's never licked and it will get to be a very hard

Our pitchers have done very well, and there a three or four of them who should win up with mighty good records. Murray looks like a great bet and we will be helped greatly now that Jack Quinn is back in O. K. Jack is a great Spring pitcher and we want him for these early games

"If we can go around the Western circuit, and break even I have no doubt the team will be able to come home and stay right up in the fight. And from what I've seen we should do that. The boys are beginning to get into good part of our baseball for certainly must improve

The Greater Boston Twilight Baseball League will open its season next Monday evening and all twelve clubs, members of the association, are busy getting ready for the big time. The daylight saving plan will be taken advantage of by the league.

Claude B. Davidson

Although some of the teams have been handicapped to get practice, most of them are ready to jump right in and open the season. The extra hour every day this week will give every manager a chance to put his players through the necessary courses of sprouts

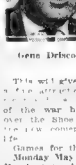
President Claude B Davidson feels that Twilight League baseball will go bigger than ever this season and as there are four new clubs on the field, plenty of action is expected. The schedule is longer by two weeks. The season will open a week earlier and close a week later than last year

Davidson has named the list of umpires. Four of the old boiders of the well-known indicator in Greater Boston have been selected. They are Bill Condy, Frank "Perk" Wren, Dan Kelley, Larry Mahoney, Tom McCabe, Tom Kelly, Sim March, Frank Rogers and Henry Cronnell.

The umpires will have full control of the games and will have the support of the President and other officers in the league.

Only one of the four new clubs will be called on the opening evening. This is the Dilboy Post, V. F. W., of Somerville. The sooner organized, will be one of the livest organizations in the State, and held by Commander Gene Driscoll, is also set and ready to go

In the scheduled the Dilboy nine will get away to a good start. Their opponents in the opening tussle will be the strong Somerville All-Stars of Lynn



Gene Driscoll

This will give the Somerville fans a fine attraction for their opening game and due to the advantage of the war heroes, as a victory over the Shoe City nine will give the new comers plenty of the old life

BRAVES OUT TO CLEAN UP SERIES WITH PHILS

Philadelphia, Penn., April 30—Things are picking up right along for the Braves. Following their pair of victories over the Polo Grounds they grabbed an interpolated, so to speak, Sunday game from the Dodgers in Brooklyn by 2 to 1 before 13,000 astonished fans. Today the Mitchmen open a four-game series with the Phillies and hope to clean up

The fans were astonished at the brilliant pitching of Larry Benton for the Braves and Leo Dickerman for the Dodgers. Both are right handers who were with Meinke last season and both now look to be about the hurling finds of the spring in the National League

Benton held the Dodgers to five hits in seven rounds. Fred Henry batted for him in the eighth with the bases filled two down and three on and was fooled out by Dickerman. That brought in John Watson, who allowed him to by old Zack Wheat and Turner Barber in the eighth with one down, but Watson struck out Schlieber and High and saved his baron.

John Watson.

Boston made the going easy for the Braves. Some four runners in the field were difficult and the infield had only six errors.

Boston made only one single in the eighth and scored Boeckel with the winning run.

Bill Seems to Be Quite a Versatile Cuss

Bill seems to be quite a versatile cuss, and the next time he faces the Dodgers they will be all at sea about passing for him

Two errors helped the Braves to win this grand pitching combat. Powell was safe in the first inning on a bad throw by Johnston and took second when Dickerman slipped on the soft going and made a poor throw on Southworth Boeckel hit into a double play, Schliebner to Johnston to Schliebner, but it scored Powell

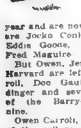
Dodgers Made Mistake as They Played for Bill

One mistake made by the Dodgers was in playing Bill Bagwell as a dead right fielder. Hornsby walked in the first inning. He singled to High at third base in the fourth. He was thrown out by Johnston at short in the sixth and did not get to right until the eighth inning

Then Bill pulled to great advantage. Boeckel opened the eighth with a single to centre the score being a tie 1 to 1. Meinke had failed the Dodgers by sacrificing Along came Bill Bagwell with a pulled single to right and scored Powell

CRIMSON PLAYS PURPLE ON WEDNESDAY

The eyes of the college world will be focussed this mid-week on the baseball engagement of Holy Cross and Harvard when they meet on Wednesday in the first game of the annual series between the Crimson and the Purple



Some of the best baseball ever disposed by college teams in the Eastern part of the country has been displayed in the annual contests between Holy Cross and Harvard Twice last year the Worcester team triumphed over the Cambridge club by a count of 2 to 1 Each time the games were replete with thrills and star play And each time the Purple won the game in the last inning, in the ninth at Cambridge and in the fifteenth at Worcester

Several of those who starred in the series last year between the two rivals have passed into the ranks of the alumni Among those who starred last year and are now among the missing are Jocko Conlon, Harold Cosgrove, Eddie Goode, Eddie Lincoln and Fred Maguire

But Owen, Jenkins and Gordon of Harvard are left, as are Owen Carroll, Doc Gautreau, Ken Ninedinger and several other members of the Barry-coached Worcester nine.

Owen Carroll, premier moundsman of the college pitching world will not face Harvard Wednesday although he is likely to meet his old Crimson adversaries at Worcester later in the season. It is the Coach Jack Barry's choice to use his star game pitching assignments Thomas and Burke will be held in reserve

Coach Jack Barry of Harvard is still undecided as to his pitching selection. He had been waiting hoping and praying that "Dixie" Brown, the brilliant negro moundsman, would be released from probation. But Brown is ineligible still and the choice lies between Gosling, Spalding and Young

Harvard is always at its best against the Purple and Holy Cross is gaining [illegible] when [illegible] Holy Cross has [illegible] than 1900 a game saw the game

As They Do in Utopia

By Les Conklin

"LOOK here Tillie," remarked Silas Squeezepenny to his stenographer, "we've got to do something to entertain these out-of-town buyers. If we could make them feel at home while they are here in the city, I'll bet they would almost double their orders. Can't you go out to the theatre with them and jolly them along a bit?"

"How can I get them to take me out when I look like a scarecrow?" said Tillie angrily. "Ever since you made the girls in the office give up their lipsticks and short skirts, I haven't been able to get a smile from even a bookagent. Why, the buyers must think I'm a walking advertisement for an old maids' home."

"I never thought of that," apologized the boss. "After this you may do as you please about your makeup."

"That's all right," objected Tillie, "but you can't expect me to doll up on eighteen dollars a week. If you expect me to vamp these birds for you, I've got to have new evening gowns and a decent coat."

"Well, I can't raise your salary right away," said Mr. Squeezepenny, "but you go down to Madame Bon Bon's and fit yourself out. After you've picked out everything that you need, tell them to send the bill to my wife."

"Here we are, lady," said Tim, the taxi driver, as he reached the destination which his fair passenger had given him.

"How much is the fare?" inquired Susie the Soubrette.

"Only $5.40" said Tim, "Really it is only $4, but of course you understand that we drivers have to knock down a little to make a living."

"Oh, Heavens! I've lost my pocketbook" exclaimed Susie. "What shall I do now? Goodness, this is terrible. Would you take this fur coat as security until I can get the money to pay you?"

"I'm afraid I couldn't use it," said Tim sorrowfully. "You see, my girl doesn't care for that kind. But don't worry about paying the fare; I'll charge the next passenger twice as much to make up for it. Goodbye."

"Your Honor, this man is charged with assault and battery," said the clerk as Horace Busenpfeffer was brought before the judge. "He gave one of the boys at the dance a black eye for no reason at all."

"Have you anything to say for yourself?" inquired the judge sternly.

"Yes sir," replied Horace. Whenever I go to a dance, this fellow breaks in on me and dances with my girl all evening. It always happens, no matter where we go, and I got sick of it."

"I don't blame you a bit," sympathized the judge. "These cheap skates that never bring a girl to a dance ought to be thrown out of the country."

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

A WELL known social worker has discovered that the only way some married couples can get along is to be divorced.

AS long as they're husband and wife they're bored to death, but as soon as they're single again they can't see enough of each other.

YOU can't mix matrimony with friendship.

WHEN marriage comes in the door, love flies out the window.

ONE couple thought so much of each other they wouldn't think of getting married.

SHE knew that as long as they were only engaged she'd see him every evening.

SHE could marry him and get his money but she'd rather stay single and have his company.

THERE'S nothing the matter with marriage; the fault is with the people who go into it.

THE only thing that's wrong with marriage is that it breaks up too many homes.

THEY call it the matrimonial sea because it's made up of three ships: courtships, hardships and battle ships.

THEY both want to be captain, and the chances are that either one of them wouldn't make a good deck hand.

WE'VE got colosseums and stadiums in almost every city, but the wedding band was the first fight ring.

AND the ministers were the original fight promoters.

THE average couple has nothing, and each one is trying to take it away from the other.

THEY don't stop fighting until they get divorced and once they're single it's against the law for a man and woman to strike each other.

ONE guy got divorced and pretty near grieved to death over his ex-wife. Finally he remarried her just so that she could give him an old-time punch in the jaw.

IT wasn't until his jaw swelled up with pain that he realized he couldn't live without her.

A MAN may kick about how his wife beats him and nags him to death but he won't be divorced a year and a half before he'll be going back to the marriage license bureau for more.

HAVE PEACE OF MIND RATHER THAN ILL-GOTTEN WEALTH

Is it not true that, aside the comforts and ways of enjoyment permitted to some who have come by their money dishonestly, you are tempted to accept the first opportunity you have for material gain and almost conclude not to be over scrupulous about it?

But would you give up a lifelong peace of mind for anything money buys?

Would you be willing to have the thought that the comforts you enjoy are the results of unfair methods in dealing with your fellow men?

Could you truly enjoy yourself knowing that you are getting this so-called pleasure at the expense of others—taking what does not belong to you?

Rid yourself of the thought that money gained dishonestly is worth the mental suffering entailed; also get rid of the thought that all who have money have gained it dishonestly.

Decide that you will have peace of mind rather than riches if you must gouge another in order to gain money and position.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jennie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. She suggests that Phoebe stay at Dreamwold until Neal returns from Father Andrews' bedside.

WITH Carlotta and Patricia sharing the burden of household work and Tom and Dan Jr. delighting themselves to getting out an assortment really, Ralph Jr. was the logical person to make himself count for cheer and help.

One evening he and I were washing the dishes, while Pat and Carlotta played, as she showed no sign of the need of doing so, dolls.

"I seem to be your regular boarder, Mrs. Harrison," he said suddenly. "Now, if you feel I am in the way, I suppose I ought to stand for me on account of that poor scared child, who's come to me because she had gotten into from my forehead the way Neal does."

"She takes a great deal of comfort from that—as I do from you," I replied, somewhat lightly to hide the drop in my voice and my face falling the minute I relax.

"I wish I could make it easier for you," he said gently.

"You do—by giving Phoebe someone on whom to lean. The poor child is a pitiable sight, almost frightens me."

"She's such a little thing," replied Mr. Lacy fondly. "I guess it's natural to want her—to want to have someone to hold tight to her hurts, to bring a brick to forget your own pain with a smile for her. But you—you always have one more than that way."

"Thank you. I hope I am stronger and more unselfish than I look—on a point of view. I feel as if I'm just waiting for Jim to come back so I can just—I don't know—be myself. It seems too wonderful to be myself," repeated Mrs. [illegible] with a smile that made me glad I had said it.

THE POPPY PERIL

By LAUCHLIN JAMES

An Eye-Opener Romance in Which Is Depicted the Horror of What Drugs Do to Hollywood

BEGIN THIS STORY NOW

Two days after Kerry Rowan, a noted motion picture director, had visited the offices of the District Attorney in Los Angeles Rowan is found shot to death in his home, with a bowl of poppies scattered on the floor beside him. Rowan has given much information whereby the drug evil in Hollywood might be attacked and had promised to risk death by testifying against those caught in raids, for the sake of a clean Hollywood and because of his sincere affection for a young film star. Then, owing back to Ireland years earlier, where we meet Kenneth Boyce, just out of college who goes to China as secretary to Sir Charles Aylsmere. Here he visits opium dens. While in China Kenneth meets Lily Waite, a "Dresden china doll," but discovers Lily's father is a morphine addict and card sharp. He comes to New York, is employed in a "Far East" shop and eventually meets Carra Leyton, to whom he presents a Japanese dagger. Carra is found stabbed with the dagger in Chinatown with a deck of hop in her bag.

Telltale Decks of Hop

DON'T say it! Don't you dare say it!" Leyton took a step toward Royce as if he meant to strike him. "I deny that there's anything to hide! I deny that my daughter ever possessed such a dagger! I never saw it. I'll swear to that. Furthermore, young man, it strikes me that you know far too much about this affair for your own good. I warn you right now that you'd better keep your mouth shut, do you hear? If you don't you'll answer to me for it. When it comes to that, I don't know but what you'll answer to me anyhow. If my daughter dies——"

His left the threat unfinished, but the evident state of his mind was such that Royce saw there was nothing to be gained by further discussion.

"Very well," he said, quietly, "if that's the attitude you mean to take I certainly shall not contradict you. I love your daughter, Mr. Leyton, and I'd have done anything in my power to prevent this thing from happening. You may believe it or not, as you choose, but I'm no more to blame for what has taken place than you are yourself."

"That, sir," replied Leyton, "remains to be seen." With a parting look of anger and suspicion he turned away and strode down the hall.

Royce left the hospital and started home, stung to the quick by Leyton's veiled accusations and beside himself with anxiety over Carra's condition.

Meanwhile, at about the time Royce was on his way down to the hospital, the city editor of one of the morning papers was informed that there was a man in the outer office who believed he had some information concerning the Chinatown murder mystery which might be of interest. A reporter was sent out to see him.

Spineless Revenge

On condition that he would not be mentioned in connection with the case, the stranger gave his name as Pressley B. Clinton and stated that he formerly had worked in a shop where the dagger found in the Pell street hallway had once been on sale.

He believed, from the description, that the victim of the stabbing was a Miss Carra Leyton, daughter of Haskell Leyton, the wealthy promoter.

"You did," said Clinton, disappointed. "Well, then you might like to know that the knife was formerly owned by Mr. Kenneth Royce, of the Far East shop. He's been quite devoted to Miss Leyton, I believe. It might pay you to ask him what he knows about this case."

"You're sure about that knife?"

"Positive. The string was unique. I knew it the minute I saw the picture in the paper. I'd suggest that you ask Mr. Royce why the knife is no longer in his shop, and also ask him as to his whereabouts this afternoon, and so on. It might lead to something. Who knows?"

"Thanks," said the reporter. "We probably will."

"So there, my blue blooded friend," remarked Clinton to himself as the descended to the street. "I fancy I have let you in for rather a hasty quarter of an hour."

The American Reporter

When Royce reached home, upon his return from the hospital, he was confronted by an affable young man who announced that his name was Casey and that he had been sent up by his city editor to procure, if possible, some addelighte on the mysterious stabbing of Miss Carra Leyton.

Could Pressleigh Clinton have read his former employer's mind at that moment he would have been amply rewarded for his trip down to the newspaper office.

Royce, in spite of his years of residence in New York, had never quite recovered from his original astonishment at the inquisitorial privileges accorded the American reporter. Never having had occasion to come in contact with the enterprising young gentlemen of the press, he regarded them with a species of dread, and at this moment, of all moments in his life, he would sooner have made the acquaintance of Beelzebub himself than of the alert looking Mr. Casey or any of his confreres.

The encounter had taken place in the lower hall of the building, and in order to gain time in which to prepare his mental defences Royce invited the young man up to his apartment.

His first impulse had been to send him away without giving him anything except the statement, "I have nothing whatever to say," but the reporter had the air of knowing so much about the matter already that Royce was anxious to find out on his own account just how much the newspapers meant to print.

The air of mystery wishing to confirm what he already knew about a given situation was one which young Mr. Casey had found exceedingly valuable to him in his business. The fact that in nine cases out of ten it was sheer simulation on his part took nothing from its effectiveness.

Never Better

It worked to a ninety on Kenneth and a few minutes later the reporter was selecting a cigarette from the Burmese silver box which his unwilling host shoved across the living room table at him.

"Now, then, fire ahead, old chap," said Mr. Casey, "but I warn you beforehand that there's probably damn little I'll care to say."

"I quite understand that, Mr. Royce," was the reply. "It's a distressing affair, all around." Mr. Casey could be as sympathetic as the next one, where policy seemed to require it, but this faculty did not diminish in the least an underlying and impersonal determination to get at the facts. "I understand you were a friend of Miss Leyton's," he went on.

"Yes, I had that privilege."

"Have you any idea as to how she came to be down in that part of town?"

"If I had, I wouldn't be likely to express it—under the circumstances."

"I see. I don't blame you, at that. You never knew of her being in Chinatown before, by any chance?"

"Never."

"Have you seen her lately?"

"Yes, I called on her at her home last week."

"Did she seem excited or unstrung or anything, at that time?"

A reporter named Casey called on Royce

"Not in the least. Never better, in fact." So relieved was Royce at being able to make this assertion in full sincerity that he overshot the mark by adding, "Why do you ask that?"

"Well, you know, Mr. Royce, they found several decks of hop in her handbag."

"Pardon me, I don't know that, Mr. Casey. I don't even know that any one has identified the handbag as being hers."

The newspaper man appraised this evasion for what it was worth. "All right," he conceded. "We'll let it go at that, but the surgeon on the slaughter-wagon says—"

"On the what?"

"I say the interne on the ambulance says he has pretty good reason to believe that the young lady had been using the stuff for some time."

"Then he'll have to be authority for the statement," retorted Royce. "But I think it will be an outrage if you print it."

"You don't believe it's true, then?"

"What do you take me for, Mr. Casey? Do you think I'll answer a question like that?" The cross-examination was threatening Royce's powers of restraint. "I refuse even to consider such a possibility as you suggest."

"Good. Now I know where we stand," said Casey, quite unperturbed. "Nothing to say on the dope end of it. Your privilege, of course." The reporter paused. He knew when to drop any given line of inquiry if to press it meant running the risk of having the interview brought to an abrupt conclusion. Royce's manner warned him that it was time to switch to another tack.

"Well, then," he resumed, "suppose we talk about that little Japanese dagger."

Royce's heart contracted. He had not looked for this. How much did this young man know about that dagger? The thought was extremely disquieting.

Nevertheless it was with a fair degree of outward composure that he consented to talk about the new point by remarking, "Yes, that does add a touch of the bizarre to the case, doesn't it? What have they found out about that knife?"

"The police? Nothing, so far as I know. Bill down at our office, Mr. Royce, we have received information to the effect that this same knife once belonged to you. Is that true?"

The blow had fallen. In a flash Royce saw that Mr. Casey's preliminary questions had merely been paving the way for this one.

It was the knife that had brought him there. It was the knife he meant to find out about.

How the paper had connected him with the dagger Royce could not imagine, but he was keenly aware that the subject was fraught with danger. In his mind there rose the memory of Haskell Leyton—grief-stricken, angry, suspicious—denying stoutly that the weapon had ever been in his daughter's possession. It was borne in upon Royce that here was another phase of the case which he could not discuss.

"May I ask your authority for that statement?" he queried, by way of gaining a little time in which to think.

"It's not our policy to disclose the sources of information, Mr. Royce. What difference does it make, in this case? If the dagger was on sale in your shop for any length of time there must be hundreds of people who might recognize it. You don't deny that you had it there, do you?"

A Vital Point

"I couldn't answer that one way or the other until I saw the dagger, Mr. Casey. I admit that for a time we had in stock a dagger similar to the one shown in the pictures published in tonight's papers. I have no means of knowing whether it was the same one. That's all I care to say on the subject."

"You say you 'had it in stock,' Mr. Royce; does that mean that you disposed of it?"

"Naturally what else?"

"Do you care to recall to whom?"

"I won't answer that, Mr. Casey. It would not be fair to involve any of our customers in this affair unless it became absolutely necessary."

"But you would help us to trace it, wouldn't you, if the ownership of the dagger became a vital point in the case?"

"Oh, if it came to a matter of law, I supposes I'd have to; not otherwise."

"Fair enough, I guess. Have you got in touch with the family about this?"

"Yes, I just came back from the hospital."

"What do they think about it?"

"That's something you'll have to ask them yourself. I'm not in a position to speak for them. I only happen to know from a hospital orderly that Mr. and Mrs. Leyton were in a whispered conversation with their daughter about the time I arrived and talked to Mr. Leyton."

"All right, Mr. Royce; I guess that's all," said the reporter, rising and beginning to button his overcoat. "You were in your office all afternoon, I presume?" His tone was casual but his eyes were fixed keenly on Royce's face.

"No, I went——" began Royce and then stopped short. That way danger loomed. He cleared his throat. "I went out a while," he concluded.

"Where to?"

"I can't see that that has any bearing on the case," said Royce accompanying the young man to the door. "Where I went is entirely my own affair."

"All right, Mr. Royce. See you again, soon. Good-night," and the inquisitive Mr. Casey was gone.

An Unwelcome Future.

"See me again soon!" muttered Royce as he returned to the living room. "What the devil did he mean by that?" and then as he sat down to face his agitated thoughts, a series of disturbing visions rose before his mind's eye.

His saw reporters questioning Haskell Leyton about the dagger and being told that Carra never had owned such a thing; he saw himself being cross-questioned as to his whereabouts on the afternoon when the deed was committed; he saw the police taking up the matter and discovering that he actually had been in Chinatown just before Carra was found; he saw his clerks being examined by the detectives and being forced to admit that their employer had seemed quite upset upon his return from downtown that day and had gone home unusually early.

Haskell Leyton had accused him of having a malign influence over his daughter. Who could tell what charges the man might make in the future?

From that thought it was an easy leap to a new and still more disquieting set of pictures in which he saw himself arrested, unjustly accused, and made to sit through a sensational murder trial. He would be acquitted, of course, but even at the bare thought of the notoriety, he shrank in his chair.

The peril of the poppy again!" he said, grimly. Then springing to his feet with sudden determination he cried aloud, "No, by God! Not this time!"

When the police, having read Mr. Casey's exclusive story, arrived at the apartment the next morning to ask the proprietor of the Far East shop a few questions, they were informed by the Japanese servant that Mr. Royce had departed during the night and had left no word as to where he was going nor when he would be back.

The legal practice of Ernest Callender, attorney for Kenneth Royce, for the Far East Shop and for a number of other business men and their respective concerns had been always of the most prosaic character.

He was a mild man, and it seemed but natural that his time should be occupied largely with the drawing up of leases, contracts, mortgages, and dull documents of every description, all of them important, no doubt, but none of them exciting.

Publicity at Last

For that very reason, as so often happens, there had lingered within him for years the secret hope that some day he would be brought into a case of such widespread public interest that the crowd in a packed courtroom would hang upon his every word, and he would be trailed by reporters demanding interviews at all hours of day and night.

As he rode downtown on the morning that Mr. Casey's exclusive story appeared there came to him a glimmer of hope that his secret longing might at last be gratified, for he noted, to his astonishment, that Royce's name had been introduced with significant prominence into the accounts of the mysterious attempted murder on Pell street the day before.

The victim had been identified, it seemed, as the daughter of Haskell Leyton, well known in the financial and social world, and as she was known to have appeared with great frequency in the company of Kenneth Royce, popular clubman and art dealer, the latter has been interviewed in the hope that he might shed some light on the affair.

"Royce's replies to questions were clearly evasive," the newspapers stated, "and he appeared to be on the defensive throughout.

"Asked if he had any direct statement he made was to the effect that he had been friendly with Miss Leyton and that when he called on her a few days ago she seemed in normal health and spirits.

He flatly refused to tell where he was on the afternoon of the crime. When asked if the curious Oriental dagger found beside the body of the victim was not one which formerly had been on display in his shop, he declined to identify it as the same weapon until he had seen it.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

HOW A DOG TURNED SINGER

SO you want to know why your dog howls when he hears music. Well, I don't know. Some people think the reason dogs howl is because the music hurts their ears. Others think they howl because they enjoy it and want to join in themselves.

That reminds me of a dog who made an awful racket when he heard a tune, but he certainly didn't act as if he disliked it. He appeared to be having a fine time.

Along while ago, I used to pass at the same time every evening a corner of a street in a big city. And there on the corner was a poor violinist who used to stand there and fiddle away on his violin for dear life. Then when he had finished a tune he would collect money from the passersby.

With this musician was always a dog — a big shaggy sheepherd dog. The dog looked better fed than his master. I often used to think how foolish it was for a poor man to keep a dog to feed.

As it turned out later, this dog made a great deal of money for his master.

How did he do it? Just you wait a minute.

Sometimes when I passed the corner and heard the man playing on the violin, the dog would be howling. There he would sit —ears back, nose in the air, mouth wide open and coming out of it loud, long howls.

It used to make me laugh. And I often found others laughing with me.

One evening as Bobby, Bunny and I were on our way home, I said to Bunny:

"Bunny, if you have the chance, ask that dog why he howls sometimes and not at others."

"Sure, Foxy Grandpa, I'll ask him tonight."

When we came to the musician and his dog, Bunny popped his head out of my pocket—you know, I always carry him in my pocket in crowded places—and had a few moments' confidential conversation with the dog, while I chatted with the violinist.

Then I said "good evening" and home we went.

When we reached home I asked Bunny what he had found out.

"The dog says he likes some tunes better than others," Bunny said, "and he likes to sing when his master plays his favorite tunes."

"That gives me an idea," I said. "I'm going to see if I can't get that man and his dog a job."

The next day I went to see a friend of mine who furnishes entertainment for children's parties and often had animal actors.

I told him about this singing dog and he said:

"Bring him around. I'll look him over."

Now they are regular performers for little boys and girls just like you and make them laugh until they cry. They are making money and have a nice little home.

YOUR BEAUTY

A NEW SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Maria Jeritza.

TO possess lovely, flower-like hands is the inevitable ambition of the woman who is engaged in the quest of beauty. And it is an entirely reasonable and practical ambition, for the hand of the woman who is moderately healthy quickly responds to intelligent care.

Keep your hands warm enough for comfort if you wish them to look their best. In cold weather wear gloves that are warm and not too tight. Do not force yourself to work in a room so cold that your hands become chilled through and through provided you wish them to be white, smooth and flexible.

Here are a few exercises which you will find enjoyable. They will start up the circulation and remove the slightly swollen appearance that one's hands sometimes acquire from hanging down at one's side too long, and they will also help to warm your hands when they become chilled.

Hold your hands in front of you, palms down. Stretch your fingers as far as you can, hold them an instant, then relax. Repeat many times.

Close your hands—that is, "double your fists" as your saying goes—then relax them, letting them hang limp. Repeat many times.

Touch each finger of your hands in succession against the thumb of the same hand as quickly as possible. Repeat many times.

Wiggle your fingers as rapidly and vigorously as you can, with your hands still held palm down. Shake your hands vigorously, rapidly, up and down as though shaking water from them.

Starting with your hands held in front of you, palms in, circle them rapidly down, out, up and back to position. Repeat many times, then reverse, circling up, out, down and back to position.

Finally—and this is more difficult—hold your hands with the palms in, fingers down, and try to shake your fingers back and forth of their own volition without moving the hands or only moving them slightly.

These exercises not only will prove restful and bracing to your hands, but they will tend to make them very strong, flexible and graceful.

How to Unveil That Girlish Skin 'Underneath'

By Using Ordinary Mercolized Wax

Any woman may easily rejuvenate her complexion at home by a simple and harmless process of gentle absorption. It has been found that ordinary Mercolized Wax, applied like cold cream at night, causes the thin veil of lifeless, sallow or blemished cuticle to flake off in almost invisible particles, revealing the fresh, vigorous and beautiful young skin under-neath. The process defies detection. For this purpose thousands of women are now using Mercolized Wax, obtaining it at the drug store in original one-ounce package. Naturally this method also removes such surface blemishes as freckles, pimples, liver spots, moth patches, etc. It certainly makes the face look years younger.

MERCOLIZED WAX

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"He gives twice who gives quickly."

This oft-quoted aphorism is attributed to an old Roman, Publius Mimus, by various classical writers.

"To shake like an aspen leaf."

We find this phrase describing the effect of fear in Chaucer's play, "Troilus and Creseide."

"You cannot be lost on a straight road."

Is a proverb that has weathered the changes of centuries.

"The long and short of it."

This everyday expression is found in Shakespeare's "Merry Wives of Windsor."

"To know small Latin and less Greek."

It is often said of a man he "knows small Latin and less Greek," in speaking of his shortcomings of his education. The phrase was originally applied to Shakespeare by the dramatist Ben Johnson in his tribute "To the Memory of Shakespeare."

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

USE MULSIFIED

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Just a teaspoonful of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply wet the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy; it is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

$20,000 FIRE AT SALISBURY BEACH

Salisbury Beach, April 30.—A firebug is blamed for a blaze that destroyed twelve stores and refreshment booths, 126 bathhouses and the "Sugar Bowl" and other buildings at Broadway, Ocean avenue and Driftway. The loss is estimated at more than $20,000.

None of the buildings were occupied and all are owned by Albion Shaheen of Lawrence, their location being known as Shaheen Corner. The fire apparently started in the ice cream saloon of Mansour Shaheen, brother of the owner.

Autoists and Patrolman Fowler discovered the fire.

JOHN D.'S PASTOR DEFENDS STAGE

New York, April 30.—The Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, pastor of the wealthy Park avenue Baptist Church, often called the "Rockefeller Church," has aroused considerable discussion by a sermon in which he criticized long-standing Baptist doctrines as reactionary and urged his congregation to abandon them.

He defended the stage, and had a good word for Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Christian Science.

"Our practice of excluding members of other denominations unless they are baptized again in our rite is out of harmony with the spirit that is growing in the churches," he said.

PRICE OF TEXTILE GOODS INCREASING

New York, April 30.—All textile stuffs are mounting in cost. Among the wholesale buyers who notice the skyward trend are those ordering underwear. Knit goods for next season will cost from 5 to 25 per cent. more. The advance may be still higher. Cotton underwear ranges from 5 to 15 per cent. more; worsteds go all the way to 25 per cent.

Stockings are to be more expensive, too, next Fall, though the increases are more reasonable than in underwear.

The advance of 25 cents a dozen in the $2 cinea stocking may not affect that retail price, or it will be affected only slightly. Jobbers probably will advance the price 50 cents a dozen, it was learned.

MUNYON'S DYSPEPSIA REMEDY

When Prof. Munyon said that his Dyspepsia Remedy would relieve indigestion and all forms of stomach trouble he simply told the truth. It will relieve a stomach that has been abused for over-eating. It will relieve a stomach that has been weakened by old-style drugs. It will do much toward making an old stomach act like a sound one. At all druggists, 25 cents.

Studio Notes

Wheeler Oakman, who has the title role in "Slippy McGee," addressed a woman's club in a California city on the "silent drama."

After his talk one of the women pointedly said to the actor, "I don't like pictures. I never saw one." "Same way with me regarding blind sharpshooters," replied Oakman.

Clarence Jay Elmer has been appointed casting director of the Cosmopolitan Corporation, succeeding Michael Connelly. Elmer has been with Cosmopolitan for the last three years as assistant director. He assisted E. H. Griffith in the making of "The Go Getter."

A song entitled "Marion," written by Eugene Lenger of New York, has been dedicated to Marion Davies, Cosmopolitan star. Miss Davies' autographed picture adorns the cover sheet.

Jane Murfin has begun production work on her play, "The Sign." May Allison has been signed for the leading role, the cast including Hobart Shannon and Rockcliffe Fellows.

Bright Spots in Shadowland

KATHLEEN KEY, lineal descendant of Francis Scott Kay, who wrote "The Star Spangled Banner," has signed a long term contract to act in Goldwyn pictures. Three years ago Miss Key played "atmosphere" for Thomas H. Ince. Snowy Baker, sportsman and film producer, engaged her as leading woman for a series of pictures produced in Australia. On her return to California Miss Key played in the "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." When she was selected another artist-director, Ferdinand Earle, to play the Persian heroine of "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam," Miss Key, also played the city siren of "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight," and became leading woman for Tom Mix.

ALL ABOUT DRESS.

MARION DAVIES, Cosmopolitan star, noted for the stunning gowns she wears in the photoplays, says that dress plays a very important part in every woman's life. "A passably good looking woman," says Miss Davies, "if she is smartly dressed, is far more attractive than a pretty woman who is poorly dressed. By this I do not mean expensive clothes. I mean clothes which are suited to a woman's personality, clothes which are becoming even though made of cheap material. In other words, all your efforts toward attaining beauty will be nought if you clothe yourself in the wrong colors and wrong lines."

SCRUBBING COMEDIAN

JIMMIE ADAMS shaved his head to play a comedy Nubian, dusky son of Africa in "Roll Along," a blackface comedy which Christie is producing. Adams is cast as a regular Octavious Roy Hugh Wiley Cohen character and portrays a "member of the Cotton Exchange"—he is engaged in exchanging cotton from the levee to the boat. He has been spending an hour every afternoon getting the Rastus make-up off his face and arms. "I've heard about these clean comedies Christie makes," he says, "and I'll say it's true. I've done nothing but scour and clean ever since entering this studio."

BEG PADEREWSKI FOR MORE ENCORES

By ZOE FABER

Scores crowded down to the stage and begged for encores and still more encores and got them to the number of six or seven at the close of the program that Jan Paderewski gave yesterday afternoon at Symphony Hall to an audience that lined the length of the hall with standees.

Chopin's and only Chopin's name appeared on the program. Of all the things that the artist chose to play those that were most appealing were the Polonaise or another Fantasie; the Raindrop Prelude; the A-flat Ballade and the B-flat minor Scherzo.

Paderewski seemed in a happy mood. He touched the keys with a delicacy that was like the finest spun cobweb and when he sang, it was a song that ran the gauntlet of all the emotions. He thundered a bit, now and then, it is true, but after all, a Paderewski recital would not be quite that if he didn't, would it?

FINDS SUN YAT SEN SEEKS ONLY PEACE

Hongkong, April 29 (By the Associated Press).—Chung-Hui, former Premier, returned today after delivering at Canton a message from President Li Yuan-Hung to Sun Yat-Sen, southern constitutionalist leader. Wang, on deliver the message, delayed his trip to The Hague, where he is to sit as one of the judges of the international court. He found Canton opened new vistas, he said, and he found Sun, like himself, holds a united China can be achieved only through agreement among leaders, and that China is too vast and populous to be dominated by any single man.

Save the Commission on Necessaries of Life

Governor Cox Should Recognize Value of the Fearless Services to the State of Commissioner Hultman

Cannot the Governor save for the State the services of Eugene C. Hultman, Commissioner on the Necessaries of Life, and his associates? Even though he may think that he cannot save the commission, will he not attempt it?

We venture the statement without fear of successful contradiction that there is not in the forty-eight States of the Union a more conscientious and able and fearless Commissioner on the Necessaries of Life than Mr. Hultman. The tragedy of Mr. Hultman's situation is that his commission is dying, because Mr. Hultman is too efficient. That is the fate of all efficient commissions which have to do with the regulation of those seeking to get rich by the exploitation of the people. The moment a commission becomes effective to control these predatory interests then the Legislature, under the control of these interests or some Governor, begins to monkey with the commission. Either the Governor offers the particular man who is responsible for the efficiency of the commission a better job and thus removes him without scandal or he is made bold to remove him, scandal and all, or the Legislature starves the commission out of existence or abolishes it or combines it with some other commission with the understanding that the Governor will not reappoint to the consolidated commission the objectionable member.

This was the fate of the old Railroad Commission, of the Public Utilities Commission, of the Gas and Electric Light Commission, and it will be the fate of the present Department of Public Utilities if it starts in to show the slightest bit of backbone. Since, therefore, we know what human nature is, we can understand how utterly useless is regulation.

Mr. Hultman has hewn to the line, letting the chips fall where they might. He has touched the pocketbooks of a thousand landlords. He helped to break the extortionate sugar price two years ago. He broke the turkey trust just before Thanksgiving two years ago. He exposed the combination of coal dealers and railroads in the beginning of the coal famine, and then his power was taken away from him and put in the hands of Mr. James J. Phelan. Mr. Frank W. Merrick of the United Improvement Associates estimates that the commissioner in his campaign against high prices has saved the people $10,000,000. Robert A. Woods, whose interest in the poor people of the city is well-known, says that no other arm of the government is raised so frequently in defence of the people. The most active organizations of women, including the Housekeepers' League, composed of the women who make the purchases for the home, have all insisted that the commission should be retained for the protection it has attempted to give them.

We feel absolutely sure that the Governor is not in the conspiracy to destroy one of the guardians of the public interest. So it is with confidence that we appeal to him to help save it for the protection of the people of this State.

Why Have Any Mad Dogs?

Rabies Could Be Wiped Out

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Many years ago, when today's champion marathon dancers were unborn, mad dogs were biting children in Newark. Pasteur's vaccine was new. James Gordon Bennett sent a lot of the children to Paris to be inoculated. This writer and William C. Reick, then a flaxen-haired boy, reported the affair in the New York Sun and New York Herald.

Now, in that same Newark, nineteen human beings are under treatment for mad dog bites. One dog, it appears, bit ten adults. A small white poodle, with rabies, bit several small boys.

England has stamped out rabies entirely, or had until recently, when a Frenchman, dodging the quarantine, brought in an infected dog in his flying machine.

This country could get rid of rabies if it chose. But when the Health Officer of Newark demands that all dogs be vaccinated against the dreadful disease, there is a piteous wail by the dog owners.

Public sentiment says that each dog has a right to bite at least one child. And, in fact, the law says that also. The owner is responsible only after the first bite—it is as though each human individual has the right to stab one person.

When vaccination is mentioned the owners of strangling Pomeranians shed tears. We have rabies in the United States because our sentimental attitude toward dogs causes us to DESERVE to have rabies.

For the United States

United States Courts Are Good Enough

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

You will have read elsewhere the President's speech on the World Court, in New York city.

The President reviewed some late history and party platforms, urging a friendly understanding between nations. President Harding will discover that the majority of American citizens want one clear and definite understanding to the effect that THIS country will manage its own affairs without help from Europe for some time to come.

When we were moralizing, generalizing and sentimentalizing at the beginning of this century we had not finished a world war that left every country in Europe hating the United States, eager for a chance to get at the wealth of the United States. Conditions now are not what they were in 1905.

President Harding finds comfort in the fact that each European country could name only one judge in the World Court, as against one judge chosen by the United States. If Woodrow Wilson, the late lamented Mr. Cox of Ohio (he ran for President once), Big Bill Haywood and Emma Goldman each could name one judge in a court, President Harding would not submit his own case to that court, even if he also had the right to name one. Four to one against him would not suit him.

The American people do not want their affairs submitted to a court in Europe that would be about as friendly to the United States as Wilson, Cox, Haywood and Emma Goldman would be to President Harding.

U. S. WOMAN CALLED A STATUE

BERKELEY, Cal., April 30.—A new definition of the American woman has just been made by Professor Eduardo Faya of the Spanish department of the University of California, a recent arrival from South America.

The American woman, says Professor Faya, is—a "statuy—cold, rational and indifferent."

Freight Train Nuisance

Editor Boston American:

How long must Boston suffer from the long strings of freight cars that crawl from the North Station along Atlantic avenue and return? The other afternoon I was on a Chelsea car which was held up at the exit to the subway on Causeway street. Some one said one of the freight cars was off the track. We waited twenty minutes and then were told to walk the length of the train to where the incoming street cars were also held up. These were switched around after considerable delay and we got started. This savors of eighteenth century traffic. M. D. F.

The Road to Ruin

Editor Boston American:

A certain publication asks with all solemnity, "Shall we let Europe slide to ruin?" The obvious answer is the old adage: "Providence helps those who help themselves." The down grade in that portion of the civilized world is still sloping more and more. The United States once stretched forth a saving hand, and got small thanks for it.

M. H. NICKERSON.

ED. NOTE—So many things is the list we had to split them. The woman's clothes are needed by Mrs. J. H., and the others by Mrs. L. McA. Thank you.

Clothing for Boy

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me the address of Mae, who asks for clothing for her six-year-old brother. I have a few articles I would be glad to send, and also articles for her. MRS. F. T. G.

ED. NOTE—Afraid you forgot your name and address. If you will send it, we will forward Mae's address at once.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. You will be put in touch with Mrs. E. F. McC., who has a boy of five in need of clothes.

Will Get His Watch

Editor Helping Hand:

If you will send me the address of the working man asking for a watch, I will see that he gets one as soon as it can be repaired, probably in a week or so?

MRS. T. S.

ED. NOTE—Several other offers of watches have been made to "H.", so I do not think he will need another. Many thanks, however, and hope to hear from you again.

Invalid Wants Wrap

Editor Helping Hand:

I have an incurable spinal trouble and am absolutely alone in the world except for the kind people who give me a home. I need a wrap for Summer wear, as I am obliged to wear one always. Has some woman a loose wrap that she is discarding, or any sort of clothes that are loose fitting? I am of medium height and wear size 40 or 42. M. C.

For Little Brother

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me Mae's address. I could help her little brother. I know what it is to want, as I was left a widow with five children, but I pulled through all right.

MRS. M. W.

ED. NOTE—And now ready to help someone else pull through! You will be put in touch with Mae. Thank you.

Baby Clothes to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

Would you please send me W. B.'s address, who asks for baby clothes? I have a few things she may have. G. M. W.

ED. NOTE—Her address will be sent you. Thank you.

Clothes for Baby

Editor Helping Hand:

I have quite a few clothes which have never been used for someone's new baby. Please put me in touch with some expectant mother, preferably in Malden or somewhere near. I also have a man's wrist watch which might be of use for H., who asked for one in tonight's paper. H. A. H.

ED. NOTE—So many poor mothers need baby clothes that we can find one in almost any locality. We will send you one in Somerville. H. has already had three other offers, so I do not think he will need the watch. Many thanks, however, for both offers.

TRADITION ADVISES PROSPERITY TO STAY HOME

By Herbert Kaufman

DOLLARS talk sense. Stop, look and listen. The American Bankers' Association tugs at the sleeve of overconfidence to suggest that some wages and prices are advancing a bit rapidly.

Ancient Egyptians thus introduced mummies at their feasts to check immoderation.

Observers ask us to remember what happened to business joy-riders in 1921.

Clouds in the offing include compounded commodity costs, "artificial fixing of working hours and conditions" and the many uncertainties of foreign trade.

Caution never went bankrupt. Wade into opportunity, but don't plunge.

Turning to rainbows, we find, according to the National Bank of Commerce, that America far leads the world in producing foodstuffs and raw materials.

Local industries buy a third of universal cotton crops, every fourth sheep is clipped for us, 60 per cent. of the copper and iron output is processed here, two silk worms in three spin for the United States and domestic manufacturers purchase an average 75 per cent. of the rubber output.

The Declaration of Independence established quite a tidy business. The men who wrote it counseled aloofness from leagues and alliances.

Tradition advises prosperity to follow their judgment and stick to its stamping ground.

Limited by Caste and Sky

Gimbel Brothers and Saks & Co. combine. Their consolidated New York stores will sell $100,000,000 worth of goods this year. The concern is conducted by a second generation of merchants who began without a penny of inherited capital.

Europe doesn't offer like chances. Caste sets limits there and the sky here.

Two sides of the Atlantic are not of the same opinion—on anything.

Henry Ford promises Michigan to establish a factory wherever he can find a site for water power and plans to use farm workers through the Winter at city wages.

After enormous investments in timber lands, coal fields, railroads and shop extensions, Ford still has $200,000,000 ready cash looking for a good job. Nobody across the way is doing so well.

When We Didn't Follow Through

France distills nathalite from sugar cane and uses it for motor fuel. English aeroplanes fly on a mixture of grain alcohol and gasoline. We haven't yet found practical substitutes for Standard oil. They still do a few things better over yonder.

The United States navy will soon demonstrate an airship-carrying submarine. Prediction overlooked that possibility.

Imagination is oftenest found under the Stars and Stripes, but some of its most valuable product isn't sufficiently above and below it. Our navy and aviation service substantiate that.

Lake and Wright gave us a running start over every other power. If we had taken advantage of the chance and followed through, France would not now be cock of the air and Britain lord of the seven seas.

A Canadian railroad carries one of our abandoned experiments through to successful conclusion and proves that radio is effective on trains covering any distance. Another chance lost to outsiders.

Time and experience must teach us forehandedness.

But whenever discouraged please remember what a young people we are.

He Didn't Specifically Mention Sugar

Houston Thompson of the Federal Trade Commission says that we're also a rather decent lot.

Last year only 450 orders were issued against false advertising and misbranding.

Less than one conviction for commercial deception per month for each of forty-eight great States.

Buying is safer here than anywhere else on earth.

Mr. Thompson is for the fullest possible competition and regrets that judges and juries do not fully understand how widely violations of the Sherman act affect common interest.

That's why jail sentences are so seldom imposed upon monopolists and profiteers. He didn't specifically mention sugar.

But housewives are attending to that situation in their own way. While the administration makes gestures at prosecution, the Civic Federation of Women's Clubs and the market committees of two hundred other organizations take up the fight started in Maryland, and pledge themselves to a boycott which will confine the purchase of sweets to the measure of necessity. Baltimore's slogan is, "No candy—no icings on cake."

Hard on the confectioner, but ruthless tariffs invite rough reprisals.

In the Net of the News

An English soldier develops a bunion while in active service and is promptly pensioned. Subsequently the condition of his foot demands amputation. Whereupon the allotment is cancelled—on the ground that the cause of his disability no longer exists.

Some officials have bunions on their brains.

Former Senator Henry F. Hollis of New Hampshire has something worse on his mind. Here's a gentleman in a very pretty mess. Without grounds for a divorce in this country he secured a decree from a Unitarian church at Bovinela, Bulgaria.

The courts officially close its doors and the Bulgarian Foreign Office now claims that the transaction is without legal force. Mr. Hollis has meanwhile remarried.

A seventy-one-year-old woman decides to turn a hand at oils. Outside of a little dabbling in water colors, her knowledge of painting is confined to five lessons. The first landscape from her brush is hung in the Royal Academy at London. It's never too late to try.

A fifteen-year-old New York girl studying one year at Julien's wins the academy prize, submits two miniatures to the Paris Salon and has them accepted. And it's never too early to begin.

Ability knows no age. Persons with calendars in their thought haven't much headroom for anything else. Watched clocks behold slight achievement.
